Investors to Make Own Assessment

ETP Securities may be offered to retail clients, professional clients or other eligible counterparties. This document identifies in general terms certain information that a prospective investor should consider prior to making an investment in the ETP Securities. However, a prospective investor should conduct its own thorough analysis (including its own accounting, legal, regulatory, financial and tax analysis) prior to deciding whether to invest in any ETP Securities issued under the Programme. Any evaluation of the suitability for an investor of an investment in ETP Securities issued under the Programme depends upon that prospective investor's particular financial and other circumstances, as well as on the specific terms of the relevant ETP Securities.

Benchmark Administrator

Under Regulation (EU) 2016/1011 (the "Benchmark Regulation") and Regulation (EU) 2016/1011 as it forms part of domestic law by virtue of the European (Withdrawal) Act 2018 (the "UK BMR"), benchmark administrators should apply for authorisation or registration as an administrator before 1 January 2020 (the "Benchmark Administrators"). Upon such authorisation or registration, the Benchmark Administrators or the benchmark will appear on the register of administrators and benchmarks established and maintained by the European Securities and Markets Authority ("ESMA") pursuant to Article 36 (Register of administrators and benchmarks) of the Benchmark Regulation (the "EEA Register") or the register of administrators and benchmarks established and maintained by the FCA pursuant to Article 36 of the UK BMR (the "UK Register").

Amounts payable on the ETP Securities are linked to the performance of various Indices (depending on the Series of ETP Securities), provided by BITA GmbH, Euronext N.V., FTSE International Limited, Solactive AG, STOXX Ltd, S&P Dow Jones Indices LLC as Index Sponsors. As at the date of this Base Prospectus, apart from FTSE International Limited, each Index Sponsor appears on the EEA Register.

As at the date of this Prospectus, FTSE International Limited appears on the UK Benchmarks Register. S&P Dow Jones Indices LLC, BITA GmbH, Euronext N.V., Solactive AG and STOXX Ltd do not appear on the UK Benchmarks Register. The transitional provisions in Article 51 of the UK Benchmark Regulation apply, such that the Index Sponsors and their benchmarks are currently required to be included in the Benchmark Register in order to allow the use of the Index Sponsor Benchmark in the UK.

The terms and conditions of each Series of ETP Securities set out the actions that will be taken in the event that a benchmark materially changes or ceases to be provided in accordance with article 28 of the Benchmark Regulation.

Compliance with Sanctions

As at the date of this Base Prospectus, the Issuer is not aware of any underlying asset being the subject of sanctions from the European Union, United Kingdom, the United States or any other relevant jurisdiction under its equivalent regulations or sanctions regimes. None of the proceeds from the issue of the ETP

Securities will be used to fund activities or persons that are subject to sanctions imposed by the European Union, the United Kingdom, the United States or any other relevant country.

Fees, Costs and Charges

This Base Prospectus and the Final Terms relating to the ETP Securities may contain certain information relating to fees and costs and charges applicable to the ETP Securities. If the Securityholder is advised by third parties (in particular companies providing services related to financial instruments, such as credit institutions and investment firms) when acquiring the ETP Securities, or if the third parties mediate the purchase, such third parties may have to provide the Securityholder, as the case may be, with a breakdown of costs and charges or expense ratios that are not laid out in the cost details in this Base Prospectus or the Final Terms relating to the ETP Securities.

In particular, such differences may result from regulatory requirements governing how such third parties determine, calculate and report costs and charges. These requirements may arise for example in the course of the national implementation of MiFID II. Securityholders should note that the information provided by third parties on all relevant costs and charges may vary from one party to the other due to these third parties additionally invoicing the costs of their own services (e.g. a surcharge or, where applicable, recurrent brokering or advisory fees, depositary fees, etc.).

No Investment Advice or Assessment of Suitability or Lawfulness of Acquisition

This document is not, and does not purport to be, investment advice, and none of the Issuer, the Arranger, the Trustee, the Security Trustee nor any other Transaction Party makes any recommendation as to the suitability of the ETP Securities as an investment. The provision of this document to prospective investors is not based on any prospective investor's individual circumstances and should not be relied upon as an assessment of suitability for any prospective investor of the ETP Securities. Even if the Issuer, the Arranger or a Transaction Party possesses information as to the objectives of any prospective investor in relation to any transaction, series of transactions or trading strategy, this will not be deemed sufficient for any assessment of suitability for such person of the ETP Securities. Any trading or investment decisions a prospective investor takes are in reliance on its own analysis and judgment and/or that of its advisers and not in reliance on the Issuer, the Arranger, the Trustee, the Security Trustee, any other Transaction Party nor any of their respective Affiliates.

None of the Issuer, the Arranger, the Trustee, the Security Trustee, any other Transaction Party nor any Affiliate of such persons has or assumes responsibility for the lawfulness of the acquisition of the ETP Securities by a prospective purchaser of the ETP Securities (whether for its own account or for the account of any third party), whether under the laws of the jurisdiction of its incorporation or any jurisdiction in which it operates (if different), or for compliance by that prospective purchaser (or any such third party) with any law, regulation or regulatory policy applicable to it.

The distribution of this Base Prospectus and the offering or sale of the ETP Securities in certain jurisdictions may be restricted by law. Persons into whose possession this Base Prospectus comes are required by the Issuer, all Authorised Offerors and the Arranger to inform themselves about and to observe any such restrictions.

For a description of certain restrictions on offers and sales of ETP Securities and on the distribution of this Base Prospectus, see the section entitled "Subscription and Sale".

This Base Prospectus does not constitute an offer of, or an invitation by or on behalf of the Issuer, the Arranger or any Transaction Party to subscribe for, or purchase, any ETP Securities.

MiFID II Product Governance/Target Market

The Final Terms in respect of any ETP Securities may include a legend entitled “MiFID II Product Governance” which will outline the target market assessment in respect of the ETP Securities and which channels for distribution of the ETP Securities are appropriate. Any person subsequently offering, selling or recommending the ETP Securities (a “distributor”) should take into consideration the target market assessment; however, a distributor subject to MiFID II is responsible for undertaking its own target market assessment in respect of the ETP Securities (by either adopting or refining the target market assessment) and determining appropriate distribution channels. A determination will be made in relation to each issue as to who, for the purpose of the MiFID Product Governance rules under EU Delegated Directive 2017/593 (the “MiFID Product Governance Rules”), is a manufacturer in respect of such ETP Securities.

UK MiFIR product governance / target market

Any person subsequently offering, selling or recommending the ETP Securities (a “distributor”) should take into consideration the target market assessment; however, a distributor subject to the FCA Handbook Product Intervention and Product Governance Sourcebook (the “UK MiFIR Product Governance Rules”) is responsible for undertaking its own target market assessment in respect of the ETP Securities (by either adopting or refining the target market assessment) and determining appropriate distribution channels.

A determination will be made in relation to each issue as to who, for the purpose of the UK MiFIR Product Governance Rules, is a manufacturer in respect of such ETP Securities.

GENERAL DESCRIPTION OF THE OFFERING PROGRAMME

Overview of the ETP Securities

The Issuer may from time to time issue collateralised ETP Securities under the Programme, linked to Indices providing exposure to a range of asset classes on the terms set out in the section of this Base Prospectus headed "Master Terms and Conditions of the ETP Securities", as read in conjunction with the Final Terms relating to such ETP Securities.

The return on a Series of ETP Securities will be funded by a Swap Transaction entered into with the Swap Counterparty linked to the daily performance of the Index referenced by such Series of ETP Securities and Swap Transaction, with the Redemption Amount of such ETP Securities funded by the termination amount of the Swap Transaction payable by the Swap Counterparty to the Issuer (which amount shall be derived from the Closing Index Level of such Index on the relevant Scheduled Valuation Day). Therefore, whilst a "Value per ETP Security" is calculated and ascribed to the ETP Securities of each Series in respect of each Scheduled Valuation Day, the return on a Series of ETP Securities at redemption is entirely dependant on amounts received by the Issuer under the Swap Transaction entered into in connection with such Series of ETP Securities. As the termination amount of the Swap Transaction is linked to the performance of the Index, the poorer the performance of the Index (and therefore the lower the Value per ETP Security) for a Series of ETP Securities, the lower the returns will be for such Series of ETP Securities.

Leveraged and unleveraged exposure

The Index referenced by the ETP Securities may be long or short the performance of the relevant underlying asset(s) referenced by the Index. Such performance of the underlying asset(s) may also be leveraged by a factor contained within the Index (the "Index Leverage Factor").

The Index Leverage Factor will typically be any of +5, +3, +2, -1, -2, -3 or -5 as shall be specified in the relevant Final Terms. ETP Securities which have:

- (i) a positive Index Leverage Factor will provide long exposure to the daily performance of the relevant underlying asset(s) ("Long ETP Securities"). This means that the Value per ETP Security of such ETP Securities will increase if the Closing Index Level of the Index increases in respect of a Scheduled Valuation Day, and will decrease if the Closing Index Level of the Index falls in respect of such Scheduled Valuation Day (excluding the effects of any applicable fees and/or any Adjustments); or
- (ii) a negative Index Leverage Factor will provide short exposure to the daily performance of the relevant underlying asset(s) (such ETP Securities, "Short ETP Securities"). This means that the Value per ETP Security of Short ETP Securities will decrease if the Closing Index Level of the Index increases in respect of a Scheduled Valuation Day, and will increase if the Closing Index Level of the Index falls in respect of such Scheduled Valuation Day (excluding the effects of any applicable fees and/or any Adjustments).

Daily return and simulated examples

Each Leveraged ETP Security is "daily leveraged" in that on any given day, the change in its Value per ETP Security (excluding the effects of any applicable fees and/or any Adjustments) will be a multiple (e.g. 2x in the case of Long ETP Securities or -2x in the case of Short ETP Securities) of the performance of the relevant underlying asset(s) on that day. The Leveraged ETP Securities track a multiple (e.g. -5x, -3x, -2x, -1, +2x, +3x or +5x) of the underlying asset(s)'s return for a single day only, as measured from the closing level on that day to the closing level on the immediately following day, and not for any other period. The return on Leveraged ETP Securities for a period longer than one day is the result of its return for each day compounded over all days in that period.

The simulated returns included in the charts set out below are included as examples of possible eventualities to demonstrate the relationship between the Value per ETP Security (excluding the effects of any applicable fees and/or any Adjustments, and assuming no Disruption Event and no Adjustment Events) and the performance of the relevant underlying asset(s).

The charts below illustrate, for a simulated class of Short ETP Securities with Index Leverage Factor -2x and a simulated class of Long ETP Securities with Index Leverage Factor 2x, which reference hypothetical daily returns for the same underlying asset(s): (i) how daily returns are calculated in respect of each Scheduled Valuation Day (Chart 1) and (ii) how the Value per ETP Security can develop over periods of more than one Scheduled Valuation Day (Chart 2).

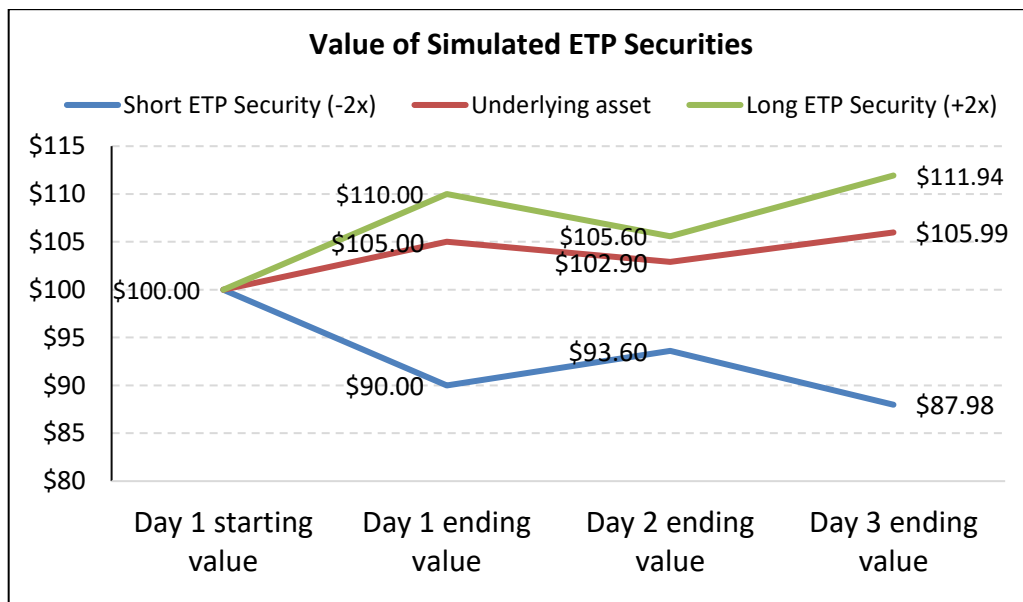

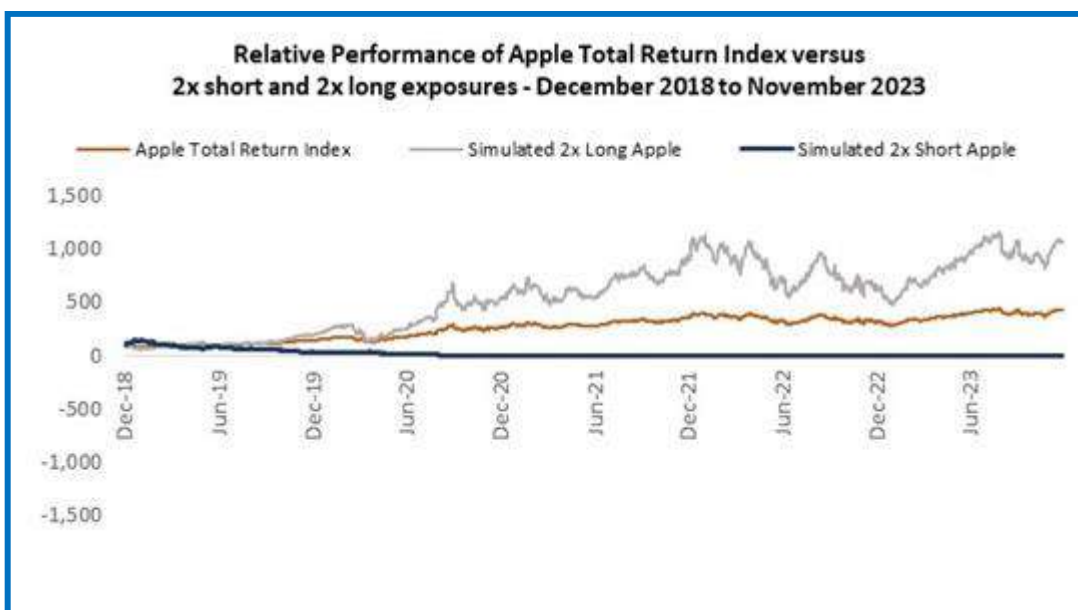

Chart 3 shows how the Reference Index Apple Total Return Index performed between December 2018 and November 2023. It also shows the performance of a simulated Short ETP Security referencing two times short (x-2) the performance of the underlying asset(s) and a simulated Long ETP Security referencing two times long (x2) the performance of such underlying asset(s) over the same period (which for comparison purposes all exclude the effects of applicable fees and/or any Adjustments).

As a consequence of the leveraged returns over periods longer than one day (excluding the effects of any applicable fees and/or any Adjustments):

- (a) the return of such Leveraged ETP Securities will likely differ from the product of the return of the underlying asset(s) and the Index Leverage Factor;
- (b) a Leveraged ETP Security will lose value if the performance of the relevant underlying asset(s) is flat (i.e. has a zero or close to zero return);
- (c) it is possible for a Leveraged ETP Security with long (or short) exposure to the relevant underlying asset(s) to lose value even if the relevant underlying asset(s)'s return is positive (negative); and
- (d) the risks in (a) to (c) will be magnified for longer holding periods, higher volatility in the value of the underlying asset(s) and higher leverage.

The examples below (which for comparison exclude the effects of any applicable fees and/or any Adjustments) illustrate how simulated Leveraged ETP Securities, which track hypothetical daily returns of underlying asset(s), can behave over periods longer than one day. Each example shows simulated Leveraged ETP Securities with Index Leverage Factors of -2x and +2x tracking the same hypothetical underlying asset(s). In each example, the return on the ETP Securities for each day is equal to the product of the return of the underlying asset(s) for that day and the relevant Index Leverage Factor.

Examples of the return of such Leveraged ETP Securities differing from the product of the return of the underlying asset(s) and the Index Leverage Factor

Example (a.1) below shows a hypothetical scenario of a sideways trending market. The bottom two rows in the table show: (i) the cumulative return of the simulated Leveraged ETP Securities and the hypothetical underlying asset(s) measured over a five-day period; and (ii) the cumulative return of the underlying asset(s) over that five-day period multiplied by the Index Leverage Factor of each such Leveraged ETP Security (the "Reference Leveraged Return").

Although the simulated daily return on the ETP Securities for each of the five days is equal to the product of the return of the underlying asset(s) for that day and the applicable Index Leverage Factor, over the entire five-day period the cumulative return of each simulated Leveraged ETP Security is different to the Reference Leveraged Return. Due to the nature of compounded daily leveraged returns over more than one day, this result is typical of a flat or sideways trending market.

Example (a.1)

Period	Index leverage Factor	Short ETP Securities				Underlying asset	Long ETP Securities
		-5x	-3x	-2x	-1x	1x	2x	3x	5x
Day 1	Beginning Value	$100.0	$100.0	$100.0	$100.0	$100.0	$100.0	$100.0	$100.0

Example (a.2) below shows a hypothetical scenario in which the market is trending in one direction (in this case upwards). The five-day cumulative return of the simulated Leveraged ETP Securities "outperforms" the five-day return of the Reference Leveraged Return. This is seen where: (i) the simulated Short ETP Securities have higher (less negative) returns than the relevant Reference Leveraged Return and (ii) the simulated Long ETP Securities have higher (more positive) returns than the relevant Reference Leveraged Return.

Examples of risks being magnified by longer holding periods, higher volatility in the value of the underlying asset(s) and higher leverage

The effect of increasing volatility

The charts below show the performance of simulated Leveraged ETP Securities with Index Leverage Factors of +2x (chart d.1) and -2x (chart d.2) over one year for a number of combinations of underlying asset(s) returns (vertical axis) and volatility (horizontal axis). They illustrate that for holding periods longer than one day (in this case one year), the return of Leveraged ETP Securities decreases as the volatility in the value of the underlying asset(s) increases (looking left to right), for a specified underlying asset(s) return. The shaded areas indicate combinations where Leveraged ETP Securities can be expected to return less than the Reference Leveraged Return over the one year holding period.

The simulation in the charts above assumes a randomly determined daily underlying asset(s) return ending with the specified cumulative underlying asset(s) return over one year. For ease of illustration, the returns of the simulated +2x and -2x Leveraged ETP Securities are calculated excluding the effects of any applicable fees and/or any Adjustments.

The effect of longer holding periods

The charts below show the performance of underlying asset(s) with an annualised volatility of 25% (which is approximately the average volatility of Apple Inc. over the past 2 years) and simulated Leveraged ETP Securities with Index Leverage Factors of 2x (chart d.3) and -2x (chart d.4). For each holding period (horizontal axis) and each cumulative return of the underlying asset(s) over such holding period (vertical axis), the charts show the cumulative return of a simulated Leveraged ETP Security versus the Reference Leveraged Return over that period. The charts below illustrate that, for the same underlying asset(s) return, the cumulative return of Leveraged ETP Securities decreases as the holding period increases (looking left to right). The shaded areas indicate combinations where the relevant simulated Leveraged ETP Security can be expected to return less than the Reference Leveraged Return over the holding period.

RISK FACTORS

An investor in the ETP Securities may lose the value of their entire investment or part of their investment in the ETP Securities.

An investor in the ETP Securities may also lose the value of their entire investment or part of their investment in the ETP Securities for other reasons which may not be considered significant risks by the Issuer based on information currently available to it or which it may not currently be able to anticipate.

Before making an investment decision, prospective purchasers of ETP Securities should consider carefully, in the light of their own financial circumstances and investment objectives, all the detailed information set out elsewhere in this document (including any documents incorporated by reference herein) and, in particular, the considerations set forth below in order to reach their own views prior to making any investment decision.

The Issuer believes that the following factors may affect its ability to fulfil its obligations under the ETP Securities issued under the Programme.

Factors which the Issuer believes may be material for the purpose of assessing the market risks associated with ETP Securities issued under the Programme are also described below.

The Issuer believes that the factors described below represent the principal risks inherent in investing in the ETP Securities issued under the Programme, but the inability of the Issuer to pay any amounts on or in connection with any ETP Securities may occur for other reasons and the Issuer does not represent that the statements below regarding the risks of holding any ETP Securities are exhaustive. Before making an investment decision, prospective purchasers of ETP Securities should consider carefully, in the light of their own financial circumstances and investment objectives, all the detailed information set out elsewhere in this document and, in particular, the considerations set forth below and in the relevant Final Terms in order to reach their own views prior to making any investment decision.

Prospective investors should note that the risks relating to the Issuer and the ETP Securities summarised in this section of the document are risks that the Issuer believes to be the most essential to an assessment by a prospective investor of whether to consider an investment in the ETP Securities.

All capitalised terms used in this section “Risk Factors” shall have the meanings given to them in other sections of this Base Prospectus, unless otherwise defined in this section “Risk Factors” of this Base Prospectus.

1. Risks relating to the potential loss of investment

The ETP Securities are not principal protected. The Final Redemption Amount and Early Redemption Amount for a Series of ETP Securities depend on the Value per ETP Security and the amounts payable under the Swap Transaction entered into in connection with such Series of ETP Securities, which in turn depend on the performance of the Index. Investors may lose some or all of their investment in the following circumstances:

- the Swap Value of the Swap Transaction entered into in connection with the relevant Series of ETP Securities falls due to the relevant Index not performing well enough (including where the Index is rising in value but not sufficiently to offset the deduction of fees and/or any Adjustments) — the greater the fall in the Swap Value of the relevant Swap Transaction (thereby reducing the amount payable by the Swap Counterparty to the Issuer upon a termination of such Swap Transaction), the greater the loss of an investor’s investment;
- investors sell their ETP Securities prior to their maturity and the sale price of the ETP Securities in the secondary market is less than the investor’s initial investment;

- the Swap Counterparty defaults in the performance of its obligations in respect of any Swap Transaction under the Swap Agreement and the Posted Collateral is not sufficient to cover amounts unpaid by the Swap Counterparty; or
- the Issuer is subject to an insolvency process impairing its ability to meet its obligations under the ETP Securities.

The ETP Securities are not protected by the financial services compensation scheme (“FSCS”) or any other government or private protection scheme. Accordingly, the ETP Securityholders may lose all or some of their investment in the ETP Securities.

2. Risks relating to the ETP Securities

Market price of the ETP Securities

The market price of the ETP Securities will be affected by a number of factors, including, but not limited to:

- (i) the value and volatility of the Index referenced by the ETP Securities;
- (ii) the value and volatility of the underlying asset(s) referenced by the Index;
- (iii) market perception, interest rates, yields, stock lending costs (in respect of Short ETP Securities) and foreign exchange rates;
- (iv) the nature and value of the Swap Transaction entered into in connection with the relevant Series of ETP Securities;
- (v) the creditworthiness of the Swap Counterparty;
- (vi) the nature and value of the Posted Collateral;
- (vii) the creditworthiness of the Swap Collateral Custodian, any applicable sub-custodians and the Authorised Participants; and
- (viii) liquidity in the ETP Securities on the secondary market.

Prospective investors should be aware that the Value per ETP Security and the secondary market price of the ETP Securities can go down as well as up throughout the term of the ETP Securities. Prospective investors should be aware that the Value per ETP Security and market price of the ETP Securities on any Scheduled Valuation Day may not reflect their prior or future performance. There can be no assurance as to the future value and market price of the ETP Securities. Accordingly, the ETP Securityholders may lose all or some of their investment in the ETP Securities.

The secondary market and limited liquidity

The ETP Securities do not accrue and pay interest (other than default interest which may be payable in limited circumstances). Investors will not receive any payments under the Conditions in respect of the ETP Securities prior to their Scheduled Maturity Date unless they redeem early. The ETP Securities may have a long term and the only means through which an investor can realise value from an ETP Security prior to its Scheduled Maturity Date is to sell it at its then market price in a secondary market transaction.

The price at which an investor may be able to sell ETP Securities at any time prior to their Scheduled Maturity Date may be substantially less than the price paid by the investor. This may occur (amongst other reasons) as a result of there being limited liquidity for the ETP Securities, the Value per ETP Security being less than the Value per ETP Security of the ETP Securities at the time the investor purchased the ETP Securities or the Index not having performed sufficiently to increase or maintain the Value per ETP Security of the ETP Securities by such amount as is necessary to negate the Accrued Fee and/or any Adjustments since the time the investor purchased the ETP Securities.

While each Authorised Participant appointed in respect of the Programme and/or a Series of ETP Securities intends to make a market for the relevant Series of ETP Securities in respect of which it is appointed as an Authorised Participant, no Authorised Participant is obliged to make a market for any Series of ETP Securities (including Series in respect of which it is appointed as an Authorised Participant) and Authorised Participants may discontinue making a market at any time and/or may make a market on a different platform or offer only one way markets. Furthermore, any market in the ETP Securities may not be liquid.

Prospective investors should note that:

- (i) the number of ETP Securities subject to any offer made by an Authorised Participant or otherwise in the secondary market may be affected by market demand for the ETP Securities, the number of ETP Securities in issue, whether subscriptions can be processed and prevailing market conditions;
- (ii) the bid or offer price offered by an Authorised Participant or any other seller or purchaser may be greater or less than the current Value per ETP Security of the ETP Securities. In addition, any such price may be subject to fees, charges, duties, taxes and/or commissions;
- (iii) they may not be able to sell their ETP Securities quickly, easily or at prices that will provide them with a yield comparable to other investments;
- (iv) any price at which the ETP Securities may be sold prior to their Scheduled Maturity Date may be at a discount, which could be substantial, to the price at which the ETP Securities were acquired by the relevant investor; and
- (v) illiquidity may have a severely adverse effect on the market price of ETP Securities.

Prospective investors should be aware that not all market participants and Authorised Participants will determine the price of the ETP Securities in the same manner, and the variation between such valuations and prices quoted may be substantial. Accordingly, any prices provided by an Authorised Participant may not be representative of prices that may be provided by other market participants.

Prospective investors should be aware that ETP Securities requested for issue and subscribed for by an Authorised Participant may be held on an inventory basis by such Authorised Participant and offered for sale and/or sold over a period of time. Investors should not assume that ETP Securities will automatically be placed with investors by the relevant Authorised Participant(s) immediately upon issue. To the extent that the Authorised Participants hold ETP Securities at any time, they may exercise their rights under them in such manner as they see fit in their own interests and need not have regard to the interests of other holders of ETP Securities or any other person. In particular, any such Authorised Participants holding ETP Securities of a Series may vote at any meeting of holders of such Series of ETP Securities or approve any resolution as they see fit (including with respect to any changes to the terms of such Series of ETP Securities proposed by the Issuer).

As a consequence of the factors listed above, the ETP Securityholders may lose all or some of their investment in the ETP Securities.

Change in Fee Levels

The Swap Counterparty and the Issuer have certain discretions to adjust the level of the Swap Spread Fee Percentage and the Issuer has certain discretions to adjust the level of the Index License Fee Percentage. This may potentially result in higher fees being applied which would reduce the return for holders of ETP Securities.

Issuer call option

The Issuer may at any time elect to redeem all the ETP Securities of a Series and designate an Early Redemption Valuation Date for such purposes, provided that the date designated as the Early Redemption Valuation Date may not be earlier than the 60th calendar day following the date of the relevant notice from the Issuer. In such circumstances the ETP Securities of such Series will be redeemed at their Early Redemption Amount per ETP Security on the relevant Early Redemption Date. There can be no assurance that the Value per ETP Security determined in respect of the related Early Redemption Valuation Date following any such exercise will be such that the Early Redemption Amount is greater than or equal to the amount invested by an investor per ETP Security. This may reduce the return received by the ETP Securityholders on their investment in the ETP Securities.

Swap Counterparty termination option

The Swap Counterparty may, following the second anniversary of the Series Issue Date of a Series of ETP Securities and on giving not less than 180 calendar days' irrevocable notice to the Issuer, elect to terminate the Swap Transaction relating to such Series of ETP Securities. In connection with such election, upon the termination of the Swap Transaction an Early Redemption Event will occur and each ETP Security of that Series will become due and payable at its Early Redemption Amount on the relevant Early Redemption Date. The Swap Counterparty shall not and is not required to consider the interests of Securityholders when exercising any such termination right. Accordingly, investors should note that the Value per ETP Security on the related Early Redemption Valuation Date arising in connection with the exercise of such termination right may be such that the Early Redemption Amount could be equal to less than the amount invested by an investor per ETP Security. Accordingly, the ETP Securityholders may lose all or some of their investment in the ETP Securities.

Scheduled term of Swap Transaction is less than the term of the ETP Securities

The Swap Transaction entered into in connection with a Series of ETP Securities may have a scheduled term that is less than the term of the ETP Securities. No later than 180 calendar days prior to the last day of the initial term or previously extended term of the Swap Transaction, as applicable, the Swap Counterparty will, pursuant to the terms of the Swap Agreement, elect either (i) to extend the term of the Swap Transaction for (A) an additional period equal to the length of the initial term of the Swap Transaction (unless the period remaining to the Scheduled Maturity Date of the relevant ETP Securities is less than the length of the initial term of the Swap Transaction, in which case for a period equal to the period remaining to the Scheduled Maturity Date) or (B) such other period as may be agreed between the Issuer and the Swap Counterparty or (ii) for the Swap Transaction to terminate when scheduled. The Swap Counterparty has no obligation to consider the interests of the Securityholders when deciding whether or not (or for how long) to extend the term of the Swap Transaction. If the Swap Counterparty does not elect to extend the term of the Swap Transaction, an Early Redemption Event will occur on the scheduled termination date of the Swap Transaction and each ETP Security of that Series will become due and payable at its Early Redemption Amount on the relevant Early Redemption Date. There can be no assurance that the Value per ETP Security determined in respect of the related Early Redemption Valuation Date arising in connection with any such election for the Swap Transaction to terminate will be such that the Early Redemption Amount is greater than or equal to the amount invested by an investor per ETP Security. Accordingly, the ETP Securityholders may lose all or some of their investment in the ETP Securities.

Events of Default and Early Redemption Events

In addition, the ETP Securities of a Series may become due and payable prior to their Scheduled Maturity Date as further described in Conditions 8 (Redemption, Purchase and Options) and 14 (Events of Default) in connection with the occurrence of any of the following events:

- (i) certain legal or regulatory changes occur in relation to the Issuer;
- (ii) the cancellation of the Index without any successor Index;

- (iii) the termination of the Swap Agreement or the Swap Transaction entered into thereunder in connection with such Series of ETP Securities, whether as a result of a default by one of the parties, for tax reasons, as a result of illegality or a force majeure event or for other reasons;
- (iv) the Issuing and Paying Agent, the Swap Collateral Custodian and/or all the Authorised Participants, as applicable, resign or their appointment in relation to such Series of ETP Securities is terminated for any reason and the Issuer gives notice that no successor or replacement has been appointed within 60 (or, in the case of the Swap Collateral Custodian, 90) calendar days;
- (v) the Value per ETP Security for such Series is not published for 14 consecutive Scheduled Valuation Days;
- (vi) the Value per ETP Security is less than or equal to 200 per cent. of the Minimum Redemption Amount for such Series of ETP Securities for five consecutive Scheduled Valuation Days;
- (vii) a Securityholder does not, upon request, receive a firm bid price from an Authorised Participant for five consecutive Relevant Business Days and, following the requisite notices being given, such Securityholder does not receive a firm bid price for the relevant ETP Securities during a further 20 consecutive Relevant Business Days;
- (viii) the Security constituted by the Security Deed becomes enforceable; or
- (ix) an Event of Default occurs under the ETP Securities. These include certain breaches by the Issuer of its obligations that are not cured within the applicable cure period and certain insolvency events with respect to the Issuer.

Following the occurrence of an Early Redemption Event or an Event of Default under the Conditions of the relevant Series of ETP Securities, such Series of ETP Securities will become due and payable at the Early Redemption Amount per ETP Security. This may be less than an investor's investment, and potentially substantially less.

With respect to each Series of ETP Securities, the Issuer enters into a Swap Transaction under the Swap Agreement, pursuant to which it pays the entire proceeds from the issue of such Series of ETP Securities to the Swap Counterparty upon receipt. The Issuer will fund payment of any Early Redemption Amount per ETP Security under a Series of ETP Securities in full from a payment due to it under the Swap Transaction entered into in connection with such Series of ETP Securities (the one exception is where the Early Redemption Amount per ETP Security for such Series is equal to the Minimum Redemption Amount, in which case the Swap Counterparty will be obliged under such Swap Transaction to make payment to the Issuer of an amount which should equal the Value per ETP Security multiplied by the number of ETP Securities outstanding at such time (even where such amount is less than the amount payable in respect of all ETP Securities for such Series based on the Minimum Redemption Amount per ETP Security)). The Issuer's ability to make the payments due under the Conditions relating to a Series of ETP Securities on their early redemption is entirely dependent on its receipt of the relevant payment from the Swap Counterparty under the Swap Transaction entered into in connection with such Series of ETP Securities. Accordingly, the Issuer and the Securityholders of a Series are exposed to the creditworthiness of the relevant Swap Counterparty in respect of each ETP Security to the extent of the entirety of its Early Redemption Amount.

If the Swap Counterparty defaults on its payments under any Swap Transaction entered into in connection with a Series of ETP Securities (including any amount payable in connection with the early redemption of a Series of ETP Securities), this would result in an event of default under the Swap Agreement, thereby leading to an early termination of every Swap Transaction entered into (and which remains outstanding) pursuant to such Swap Agreement (including those Swap Transactions entered into in respect of other Series of ETP Securities) and the early redemption of any outstanding Series of ETP Securities. In connection with any such early termination of all outstanding Swap Transactions under the Swap Agreement, if the Swap Counterparty has not paid in full the Aggregated Early Termination Amount to the Issuer when due, then the Issuer may (subject to the terms of the Swap Pledge Agreement) enforce the security under the Swap Pledge Agreement in respect of the Swap Collateral Accounts and the Posted Collateral (see “Risks relating to the Swap Pledge Agreement and the Posted Collateral” below). If an event of default under the Swap Agreement consequently results in a default in the payment of the Redemption Amount in respect of any Series of ETP Securities by the Issuer (subject to a 14-day grace period), it may also result in the Security under the ETP Securities becoming enforceable (see “Rights in respect of the Secured Property” below).

However, if, following the realisation in full of the Secured Property (whether by way of liquidation or enforcement) and application of available cash sums as provided in Condition 6 (Security), there are any outstanding claims against the Issuer in respect of any Series of ETP Securities which remain unpaid, then such outstanding claim will be extinguished and no debt will be owed by the Issuer in respect thereof (see “Limited recourse obligations, non-petition and related risks” below). In such circumstances investors in the ETP Securities may not receive back their investment and may receive zero.

As a consequence of the factors listed above, the ETP Securityholders may lose all or some of their investment in the ETP Securities.

Rights in respect of the Secured Property

The obligations of the Issuer under all Series of ETP Securities will be secured pursuant to the Security Deed by the Secured Property.

The Security over the Secured Property will become enforceable by the Security Trustee on behalf of the Securityholders of all Series of ETP Securities if the Issuer defaults on the payment of the Redemption Amount in respect of any Series of ETP Securities and such default continues for more than 14 days. Following the security becoming enforceable, an Early Redemption Event will occur in respect of every Series of ETP Securities resulting in all Series of ETP Securities becoming due and payable early on the Early Redemption Date (see “Early redemption of every Series of ETP Securities upon the Security becoming enforceable” below).

Subject to (i) any enforcement of the Security by the Security Trustee under the Security Deed and (ii) the priority of claims specified in the Security Deed (and set out in Condition 6(f) (Application of Proceeds of Enforcement of Security)), the proceeds of realisation of any Secured Property will be shared between the Securityholders in respect of all Series of ETP Securities pari passu and rateably amongst themselves. Accordingly, Securityholders in respect of each Series of ETP Securities will only be entitled to a pro rata share of such proceeds.

Securityholders may also only exercise any rights in respect of the Security (including: (i) directing the Security Trustee to enforce the Security at any time after the Security has become enforceable; (ii) directing the Security Trustee to consent to any amendment to the Security Deed; and (iii) removing the Security Trustee) by passing a Securityholders’ Resolution. A Securityholders’ Resolution requires the consent of a majority of at least 75 per cent. in principal amount of the ETP Securities in respect of all Series of ETP Securities outstanding (excluding any ETP Securities in respect of which all claims of the Secured Creditors arising in respect of such ETP Securities and the Transaction Agreements in respect of such ETP Securities have been satisfied in full). Accordingly, where Securityholders hold less than 75 per cent. in principal amount of all ETP Securities outstanding under the Programme, they may be unable to exercise any rights in respect of the Security and/or may incur costs and delays in seeking to exercise such rights.

The Secured Property includes, amongst other things, the rights of the Issuer under the Swap Agreement (including all Swap Transactions thereunder), the Swap Pledge Agreement and the Account Control Agreement. In connection with the Swap Agreement entered into by the Issuer, the Issuer has entered into (i) a separate Belgian law security agreement in the form of the Swap Pledge Agreement with the Swap Counterparty and (ii) an Account Control Agreement with the Swap Collateral Custodian and the Swap Counterparty. Pursuant to the Swap Pledge Agreement, the Swap Counterparty has granted security interests in favour of the Issuer over the Swap Collateral Accounts and all of the Swap Counterparty's rights under the Swap Collateral Custody Agreement to the extent they relate to such Swap Collateral Accounts in order to secure the obligations of the Swap Counterparty to the Issuer under the Swap Agreement. Pursuant to the Account Control Agreement, the Swap Counterparty (or the Swap Collateral Custodian on its behalf) will post Eligible Collateral to the Swap Collateral Accounts in order to ensure that the Swap Counterparty's obligations under the Swap Agreement are fully collateralised. Assets posted to the Swap Collateral Accounts may be subject to volatility in their prices and subject to credit and liquidity risks. No investigations, searches or other enquiries will be made by or on behalf of the Issuer in respect of the Posted Collateral and no representations or warranties, express or implied, are or will be given by the Issuer to Securityholders in relation to any Posted Collateral.

The Issuer is exposed to movements in the value of (i) each Swap Transaction and (ii) the Posted Collateral. It is also exposed to the creditworthiness of the Swap Counterparty, the Swap Collateral Custodian (see "Risks relating to the Swap Counterparty" and "Risks relating to the Swap Collateral Custodian" above) and any obligor of Posted Collateral.

The value of the Swap Agreement (including all Swap Transactions thereunder) to the Issuer and the value of the Posted Collateral may increase or decrease from time to time. If the value of the Swap Agreement (including all Swap Transactions thereunder) to the Issuer increases and/or the value of the Posted Collateral decreases, the Swap Counterparty will be obligated to transfer additional Eligible Collateral to the Swap Collateral Accounts. In such circumstances there may be a period prior to the transfer of the additional Eligible Collateral in which the value of the Posted Collateral is less than the amount that would be payable by the Swap Counterparty to the Issuer if the Swap Agreement (including all Swap Transactions thereunder) were to terminate. The value of the Posted Collateral may also be less than the amount that would be payable by the Swap Counterparty to the Issuer if the Swap Agreement (including all Swap Transactions thereunder) were to terminate where additional Eligible Collateral is not transferred to the Swap Collateral Accounts when required.

If (I) the Swap Agreement (including all Swap Transactions thereunder) terminates and the Swap Counterparty does not pay in full the amount payable to the Issuer under the Swap Agreement (including all Swap Transactions thereunder) when due or (II) the Swap Counterparty fails (or has failed to cause the Swap Collateral Custodian) to deliver Eligible Collateral to the Swap Collateral Accounts when required in accordance with the terms of the Account Control Agreement and that failure continues for two London and Paris Business Days after notice of that failure is given by (or on behalf of) the Issuer to the Swap Counterparty and the Swap Collateral Custodian in accordance with the terms of the Swap Pledge Agreement, the Issuer will (subject to the terms of the Swap Pledge Agreement and the Account Control Agreement) be entitled to enforce the security under the Swap Pledge Agreement and sell the Posted Collateral. Certain Taxes (including, without limitation, VAT) may be applicable to a sale of the Posted Collateral and reduce the sums available to the Issuer to satisfy the claims of the Securityholders and all Secured Creditors whose claims rank in priority to those of the Securityholders under the ETP Securities.

There can be no assurance that the net proceeds from the enforcement of the security under the Swap Pledge Agreement will generate sufficient funds to cover the amounts owed by the Swap Counterparty to the Issuer under the Swap Agreement (including all Swap Transactions thereunder) since the market value of the Posted Collateral against which the security is enforced will be affected on a daily basis by a number of factors including but not limited to (i) if the Posted Collateral includes securities, the creditworthiness of the issuers thereof and the time remaining to the scheduled maturity of such securities, (ii) market perception, interest rates, yields and foreign exchange rates, (iii) the liquidity of the assets comprising the Posted Collateral, (iv) the time it takes to enforce, obtain and realise the Posted Collateral and (v) any Taxes, fees, costs and expenses deducted, withheld or required to be paid in connection with the enforcement of the security and the realisation of the Posted Collateral under the Swap Pledge Agreement and the Account Control Agreement.

If the net proceeds from the enforcement of the security under the Swap Pledge Agreement are insufficient to cover the amounts owed by the Swap Counterparty to the Issuer under the Swap Agreement (including all Swap Transactions thereunder), the Issuer will have an unsecured claim against the Swap Counterparty in respect of the shortfall. The Issuer and/or the Security Trustee may, in certain circumstances, pursue a claim against the Swap Counterparty subject to being indemnified and/or secured and/or pre-funded to its or their satisfaction by one or more Securityholders of all Series of ETP Securities prior to taking any such action. Any sums realised from such an action will be applied pro rata across every Series of ETP Securities and subsequently in accordance with the order of priority specified in the Conditions for each such Series of ETP Securities. It would be extremely unlikely that any such action would recover sufficient amounts to enable the full Early Redemption Amount to be paid to Securityholders in respect of each ETP Security and prospective investors should not place any reliance on being able to recover all or some only of the unsecured claim. Therefore, Securityholders are exposed to the creditworthiness of the Swap Counterparty, which shall be Natixis in respect of all Series of ETP Securities.

As a consequence of the factors listed above, the ETP Securityholders may lose all or some of their investment in the ETP Securities.

Early redemption of every Series of ETP Securities upon the Security becoming enforceable

If the Security becomes enforceable in respect of any Series of ETP Securities due to a failure by the Issuer to make payment of the Redemption Amount in respect of any ETP Security of a Series of ETP Securities when due on its Scheduled Maturity Date or Early Redemption Date (as applicable) (and which payment continues for more than 14 days), then a Security Enforcement Redemption Event will occur in respect of every other Series of ETP Securities (each such Series, an “Affected Series”), even if such payment default does not relate to an Affected Series and such Affected Series would not otherwise have been subject to early redemption. Following the occurrence of a Security Enforcement Redemption Event, each ETP Security for such Series will become due and payable at its Early Redemption Amount (see “Events of Default and Early Redemption Events” above). This may be equal to less than an investor’s investment. Accordingly, the ETP Securityholders may lose all or some of their investment in the ETP Securities.

Taxation and no gross-up

In the event that any withholding or deduction for or on account of Tax is imposed on payments on such ETP Securities, such Securityholder will be subject to such tax or deduction and will not be entitled to receive amounts to compensate for such withholding or deduction. No Event of Default will occur as a result of any such withholding or deduction.

Any payments made to the Issuer under the Swap Transaction entered into in connection with a Series of ETP Securities may also be subject to charges, withholding or deduction for, or on account of, Taxes. In such circumstances the sums available to the Issuer (and/or the Security Trustee) to pay the Final Redemption Amount or the Early Redemption Amount in respect of such Series of ETP Securities may not be sufficient to satisfy in full the claims of the Securityholders, and each Secured Creditor whose claims rank in priority to those of the Securityholders, of such Series of ETP Securities. This would result in the Security becoming enforceable pursuant to the Conditions of such Series of ETP Securities.

Any realisation, transfer or other disposal of Eligible Collateral or Posted Collateral in connection with the enforcement of the security created in favour of the Issuer under the Swap Pledge Agreement may also be subject to charges, withholding or deduction for, or on account of, Taxes. In such circumstances, the amounts available to the Security Trustee following an enforcement of the Security will be reduced, thereby reducing the amounts recoverable by each Securityholder and Secured Creditor under every Series of ETP Securities.

The Issuer may become liable for Tax charges whether by direct assessment or withholding. If any such event occurs as a result of a change in law or regulation that materially increases the cost to the Issuer of performing its obligations under a Series of ETP Securities and/or the Swap Agreement and/or the Account Control Agreement and/or the Swap Pledge Agreement or makes it illegal for the Issuer to do the same or to hold, acquire or dispose of all of the types of Eligible Collateral, such Series of ETP Securities may become subject to early redemption (see "Events of Default and Early Redemption Events" above) or a shortfall could arise in the amount available to meet the obligations of the Issuer under the ETP Securities, which could result in losses for the holders of the ETP Securities.

Anti-Tax Avoidance Directive

As part of its anti-tax avoidance package, and to provide a framework for a harmonised implementation of the BEPS conclusions across the EU, the EU Council adopted Council Directive (EU) 2016/1164 ("ATAD I") on 12 July 2016. The EU Council adopted Council Directive (EU) 2017/952 ("ATAD II") on 29 May 2017 to provide for minimum standards for counteracting hybrid mismatches involving EU member states and third countries.

EU member states were required to implement ATAD I by 31 December 2018 (subject to derogations for EU member states which have equivalent measures in their domestic law). Ireland has implemented the relevant aspects of ATAD I, including the interest limitation rule which applies to companies with respect to their accounting periods commencing on or after 1 January 2022.

EU member states were required to implement ATAD II by 31 December 2019 (except for measures relating to reverse hybrid mismatches, which have applied in Ireland since 1 January 2020) and Ireland has implemented the relevant provisions of ATAD II.

ATAD I and ATAD II contain various measures that could, depending on their implementation and application in Ireland, potentially result in certain payments made by the Issuer ceasing to be fully deductible for Irish tax purposes. There are two measures of particular relevance:

- first, ATAD I provides for an interest limitation rule which restricts the deductible exceeding borrowing costs of an entity to 30% of its earnings before interest, tax, depreciation and amortisation. However, the interest limitation rule only applies to the net or 'exceeding' borrowing costs of an entity (being the amount by which its borrowing costs exceed its taxable interest revenues and other economically equivalent taxable revenues); and
- second, ATAD II provides for hybrid mismatch rules. These rules are designed to neutralise arrangements where amounts payable between 'associated entities' are deductible from the income of one entity but are not taxable for the other or the same amounts are deductible for two associated entities. Associated for these purposes includes direct and indirect participation in terms of voting rights or capital ownership of 25 per cent. or more or an entitlement to receive 25 per cent. or more (50 per cent. in certain circumstances) of the profits of that entity, as well as entities that are part of the same consolidated group for financial accounting purposes or enterprises that have a significant influence in the management of the taxpayer.

if ATAD I or ATAD II were to result in increased tax charges for the Issuer, this could result in losses for the holders of the ETP Securities if a shortfall were to arise in the amount available to meet the obligations of the Issuer under the ETP Securities. Increased tax charges could also lead to a mandatory redemption of the ETP Securities, which may result in the ETP Securityholders return on their investment being reduced.

Potential U.S. withholding taxes pursuant to Section 871(m) of the Code in relation to “dividend equivalent” payments made on U.S. equities in connection with a Swap Transaction for a particular Series of ETP Securities

Section 871(m) of the Code and the U.S. Treasury regulations thereunder (“Section 871(m)”) requires withholding (currently at a rate of 30%, subject to reduction under an applicable tax treaty) on payments made or deemed made to non-U.S. holders on certain financial instruments to the extent such payments are contingent upon or determined by reference to the payment of U.S.-source dividends. Under U.S. Treasury regulations, payments or deemed payments to non-U.S. holders with respect to certain transactions (“Specified Transactions”) involving economic characteristics that are sufficiently similar to those of underlying or referenced U.S. equity securities (or indexes that include U.S. equity securities) that pay U.S.-source dividends may be treated as “dividend equivalent” payments that are subject to U.S. withholding tax under Section 871(m).

Because the Issuer intends to treat the ETP Securities as equity for U.S. federal income tax purposes (and pursuant to the terms and conditions, Securityholders agree to do the same), no ETP Security will be treated as a Specified Transaction by the Issuer and therefore no withholding under Section 871(m) will apply to payments made on the ETP Securities. This characterisation is notwithstanding any differing or alternative characterisation of the ETP Securities for any other purpose including, without limitation, whether the ETP Securities are treated as debt for other purposes. The Issuer’s characterisation of the ETP Securities is not binding on the U.S. Internal Revenue Service (“IRS”) and it is possible that the IRS asserts that the ETP Securities are not treated as equity, or are otherwise subject to withholding under Section 871(m), in which case, material adverse consequences may arise to holders of ETP Securities.

Section 871(m) withholding may apply to dividend equivalent payments received by the Issuer from the Swap Counterparty with respect to the Swap Transaction for a Series of ETP Securities. Although no payment will be made by the Swap Counterparty to the Issuer pursuant to the terms of any Swap Transaction as a direct consequence of any U.S.-source dividends paid on a reference U.S. equity security, the payment of any such dividend on a reference U.S. equity security may nonetheless be treated as resulting in a “dividend equivalent” payment on a Specified Transaction under Section 871(m) as applicable U.S. Treasury regulations presume such dividend to have been priced into the terms of a Specified Transaction.

The tests applicable for determining whether a transaction is a Specified Transaction will depend on the terms of the relevant transaction and the date on which the transaction is issued or entered into, and may be subject to redetermination in connection with certain modifications of the transaction.

The Section 871(m) regulations provide certain broadly applicable exceptions to characterisation as Specified Transactions, in particular, for certain transactions linked to certain broad-based indices.

If any such U.S. withholding tax liability is incurred with respect to a Swap Transaction, the Swap Counterparty will satisfy such tax liability directly with the relevant tax authorities. The Swap Calculation Agent will then account for this in the Tax Adjustment Amount for the relevant Scheduled Valuation Day and Series of ETP Securities, meaning that the Value per ETP Security for such Scheduled Valuation Day and Series of ETP Securities will be adjusted accordingly to reflect such U.S. withholding tax liability incurred. The effect of this is that any U.S. withholding tax liability incurred as a result of Section 871(m) in connection with a Swap Transaction will be passed on to the Securityholders for the relevant Series of ETP Securities and such Securityholders will not be entitled to receive amounts to compensate for such withholding or deduction. The ETP Securityholders return on their investment in the ETP Securities may be reduced consequently.

Securityholders should consult with their tax advisors regarding the application of Section 871(m) and the regulations thereunder in respect of their acquisition and ownership of ETP Securities.

Meetings of Securityholders of a Series of ETP Securities, resolutions, modification, waivers and substitution for a particular Series of ETP Securities

The Trust Deed for a particular Series of ETP Securities contains provisions for calling meetings of Securityholders of such Series of ETP Securities to consider matters affecting their interests generally with respect to such Series of ETP Securities. These provisions permit defined majorities to bind all Securityholders of such Series of ETP Securities including Securityholders who did not attend and vote at the relevant meeting or in respect of the relevant resolution and Securityholders who voted in a manner contrary to the majority. As a result, Securityholders may be bound by a change to the Conditions or by some other decision that affects their investment in the ETP Securities even though they have not agreed to such change. In addition to the foregoing, in respect of a Series of ETP Securities, to the extent that the consent of the Trustee is required under the Conditions or the Trust Deed, the Trustee may, in certain circumstances and without the consent of the Securityholders for such Series of ETP Securities, (i) agree to certain modifications of, or the waiver or authorisation of any breach or proposed breach of, the Conditions for such Series of ETP Securities or any of the provisions of the Trust Deed and/or any other Transaction Document to which the Trustee is a party, (ii) determine that any Event of Default or Potential Event of Default will not be treated as such for the purposes of such Series of ETP Securities or (iii) agree to the substitution of another company as principal obligor under such Series of ETP Securities in place of the Issuer provided that such waiver or substitution is not, in the opinion of the Trustee, materially prejudicial to the interests of the Securityholders for such Series of ETP Securities. To the extent that the consent of the Trustee is required under the Conditions or the relevant Trust Deed, the Trustee may also agree, without the consent of the Securityholders for such Series of ETP Securities, to any modification to the Conditions, the Trust Deed and/or any other Transaction Document to which the Trustee is a party which is, in the opinion of the Trustee, of a formal, minor or technical nature or is made to correct a manifest error. Any such action by the Trustee as is described in this paragraph may result in Securityholders for such Series of ETP Securities being bound by a change to the Conditions or by some other decision that affects their investment in the ETP Securities of such Series even though they have not agreed to such change.

Prospective investors should note that in certain circumstances the Issuer and the relevant Transaction Party may take certain actions and certain amendments may be made to the terms of a Series of ETP Securities and/or the relevant Transaction Documents without the requirement for the approval of any Securityholders or the consent of the Trustee. Again, this may result in Securityholders of a Series of ETP Securities being bound by a change to the Conditions for such Series of ETP Securities or by some other decision that affects their investment in the ETP Securities even though they have not agreed to such change.

These include (without limitation):

- (i) the transfer of Posted Collateral from the Swap Collateral Accounts back to the Swap Counterparty under the Account Control Agreement and the related release of Security provided such transfer and release is effected in accordance with the terms of the Account Control Agreement;
- (ii) the substitution of the Posted Collateral as described in Condition 11(d) (Substitution of Posted Collateral) and amendments and/or supplements to the Account Control Agreement in connection therewith;
- (iii) any change to any component of the Accrued Fee at any time;
- (iv) any adjustment to the Conditions of the ETP Securities pursuant to Condition 9(e) (Adjustment Events);

- (v) any appointment of an additional or replacement Transaction Party provided such appointment or replacement is effected in accordance with the Conditions and the applicable Transaction Document(s);
- (vi) the substitution of the relevant Index referenced by such Series of ETP Securities with a Successor Index pursuant to Condition 10(a) (Successor Index);
- (vii) the transfer of the Swap Agreement, the Account Control Agreement and/or the Swap Pledge Agreement pursuant to Condition 11(b) (Transfer of Swap Agreement and Swap Transaction, Account Control Agreement and/or Swap Pledge Agreement);
- (viii) any increase to the Programme Maximum Number of ETP Securities;
- (ix) any amendment to the eligibility requirements for Eligible Collateral as set out in the Account Control Agreement;
- (x) any amendment to any term of the Conditions or any Transaction Document which relate to an operational or procedural issue; or
- (xi) any extension to the Initial Swap Term or Extended Swap Term, as applicable.

In the event that any of these events may crystallise, the Securityholders of the ETP Securities may lose some or all of their investment.

Securityholder directions for a particular Series of ETP Securities

Following the occurrence of an Event of Default, a Publication Failure Event, a Swap Counterparty Event of Default or a Swap Agreement Tax Event, the Conditions of each Series of ETP Securities permit the holders of one-fifth or more of the outstanding number of ETP Securities of such Series of ETP Securities to direct the Trustee to deliver a notice to the Issuer for the early redemption of such Series of ETP Securities. Pursuant to the terms of the Trust Deed, the holders of one-fifth or more of the outstanding number of ETP Securities of a particular Series of ETP Securities may also direct the Trustee to take such action or step or institute such proceedings against the Issuer as they think fit in order to enforce their rights as holders of such ETP Securities. However, prospective investors should be aware that the Trustee will not be obliged to take any step or action or to act in accordance with any such direction unless it has been indemnified and/or secured and/or pre-funded to its satisfaction by one or more Securityholders. This may result in a delay in any step or action being taken by the Trustee and, if the Securityholders cannot put adequate arrangements in place, in no step or action being taken by the Trustee. If there is any such delay in any step or action being taken by the Trustee, the Securityholders may lose some or all of their investment.

Securityholders' Resolutions in respect of all Series of ETP Securities

In respect of certain decisions or directions that will affect every Series of ETP Securities outstanding (for example, a resolution to enforce or realise the Security or to take certain actions with respect to the Secured Property), a direction by the holders of one-fifth or more of the outstanding number of ETP Securities of all Series of ETP Securities or a Securityholders' Resolution will be needed in order for the Security Trustee or the Issuer, as applicable, to act. A Securityholders' Resolution requires the consent of a majority of at least 75 per cent. in principal amount of the ETP Securities in respect of all Series of ETP Securities outstanding (excluding any ETP Securities in respect of which all claims of the Secured Creditors arising in respect of such ETP Securities and the Transaction Agreements in respect of such ETP Securities have been satisfied in full).

Accordingly, where Securityholders hold less than at least one-fifth of the outstanding number of ETP Securities under the Programme or, in the case of a Securityholders' Resolution, 75 per cent. in principal amount of all ETP Securities outstanding under the Programme, they may be unable to exercise any rights in respect of the Security and/or may incur costs and delays in seeking to exercise any such rights.

Exchange rate risk following a termination of the Swap Agreement

A Series of ETP Securities may be denominated in EUR, GBP or USD, or as otherwise determined by the Issuer. Upon an early termination of the Swap Agreement (including every Swap Transaction thereunder), the early termination amount payable by the Swap Counterparty to the Issuer in respect of such termination will be denominated in EUR. If a Series of ETP Securities is denominated in a currency other than EUR (the “Series Currency”), a pro rata proportion of the early termination amount received by the Issuer under the Swap Agreement will need to be converted into the Series Currency in order to fund the Early Redemption Amount for such Series of ETP Securities. This will create currency conversion risks and may reduce the Early Redemption Amount payable to Securityholders for such Series of ETP Securities, which may reduce the return received by ETP Securityholders on their investment in the ETP Securities.

3. Risks relating to the Issuer

The Issuer is a special purpose vehicle

The Issuer is not an operating company. The Issuer is a special purpose vehicle with the sole business of issuing ETP Securities. As such, the Issuer has, and will have, no assets other than (i) the small sums of money raised by issuing shares on the date of its incorporation, (ii) such fees (if any) as are payable to it in connection with the issue of any Series of ETP Securities from time to time and (iii) any rights, property or other assets on which Series of ETP Securities issued under the Programme are secured. This means that if the assets on which all outstanding Series of ETP Securities are secured are not sufficient to meet sums payable by the Issuer in respect of all such Series, there are no other assets that are available to the Issuer to make those payments. In such circumstances, the holders of ETP Securities would not receive the amounts owing to them in full.

Limited recourse obligations, non-petition and related risks

Other than following the occurrence of a Minimum Redemption Amount Shortfall Event, the Transaction Parties and Securityholders in respect of each Series of ETP Securities will have recourse only to the Secured Property, subject always to the Security, and not to any other assets of the Issuer. If, following realisation in full of the Secured Property (whether by way of liquidation or enforcement) and application of available cash sums as provided in Condition 6 (Security), any outstanding claim against the Issuer in respect of any Series of ETP Securities remains unpaid, then such outstanding claim will be extinguished and no debt will be owed by the Issuer in respect thereof.

Following the occurrence of a Minimum Redemption Amount Shortfall Event, notwithstanding anything in the Transaction Documents to the contrary, the Transaction Parties and Securityholders in respect of the Series of ETP Securities under which such Minimum Redemption Amount Shortfall Event has occurred will have recourse only to a portion of the Secured Property relating to the Issuer’s rights in respect of the Swap Termination Amount due and payable under the Swap Transaction entered into in connection with such Series of ETP Securities (including any amounts already received by the Issuer from the Swap Counterparty in respect of such Swap Termination Amount), subject always to the Security, and not to any other assets of the Issuer. If, following realisation in full of any portion of the Secured Property relating to the Issuer’s rights in respect of such Swap Termination Amount (whether by way of liquidation or enforcement) and application of available cash sums as provided in Condition 6 (Security), any outstanding claim against the Issuer in respect of any Minimum Redemption Amount Shortfall relating to any ETP Security remains unpaid, then such outstanding claim shall be extinguished and no debt shall be owed by the Issuer in respect thereof.

A Minimum Redemption Amount Shortfall Event will occur if on the Early Redemption Valuation Date or Final Redemption Valuation Date, as applicable, of a Series of ETP Securities, the Minimum Redemption

Amount per ETP Security is greater than the Value per ETP Security for such Series of ETP Securities on such day. In such circumstances, the Swap Counterparty would be obliged to pay an amount to the Issuer under the Swap Transaction entered into in connection with such Series of ETP Securities based on the Value per ETP Security and therefore would be insufficient to fund a redemption of each ETP Security at its Minimum Redemption Amount. Any outstanding claim against the Issuer in respect of an amount per ETP Security equal to (i) the Minimum Redemption Amount less (ii) such amount payable by the Swap Counterparty to the Issuer divided by the number of ETP Securities outstanding for such Series (a "Minimum Redemption Amount Shortfall") would be extinguished and no debt will be owed by the Issuer in respect thereof.

None of the Transaction Parties in respect of any Series of ETP Securities, the Securityholders in respect of any Series of ETP Securities or any person acting on behalf of any of them may, at any time, bring, institute or join with any other person in bringing, instituting or joining insolvency, administration, bankruptcy, winding-up, examinership or any other similar proceedings (whether court-based or otherwise) in relation to the Issuer or any of its assets. There is also the risk that the Issuer may become subject to claims or other liabilities (whether in respect of the ETP Securities or not) which are not themselves subject to limited recourse or non-petition limitations.

No person other than the Issuer will be obliged to make payments on the ETP Securities of any Series and the ETP Securities issued under the Programme will not be guaranteed by, or be the responsibility of, any other entity. In particular, the ETP Securities (i) do not represent an interest in and will not be obligations of, or insured or guaranteed by, the Arranger, any Transaction Party or any Affiliate or any company associated with any of them, (ii) will not have the status of a bank deposit and will not be within the scope of any deposit protection scheme and (iii) are not insured or guaranteed by any government, government agency or other body.

As a consequence of the factors listed above, the ETP Securityholders may lose all or some of their investment in the ETP Securities.

Insolvency

The Issuer has agreed not to engage in activities other than the issue of ETP Securities and related and incidental matters. Any issue of ETP Securities must be on terms that provide for the claims of the Securityholders and Transaction Parties in respect of such ETP Securities to be limited to the proceeds of the assets on which such ETP Securities are secured (see "Limited recourse obligations, non-petition and related risks" above). In addition, there are restrictions on the Securityholders and Transaction Parties bringing insolvency proceedings against the Issuer (see "Limited recourse obligations, non-petition and related risks" above). If such provisions are upheld, it would be unlikely that the Issuer could become insolvent.

However, notwithstanding the restrictions described in Condition 7 (Restrictions) and the limited recourse and non-petition provisions, should the Issuer have outstanding liabilities to third parties which it is unable to discharge or should the limited recourse or non-petition provisions be found to be non-enforceable in a particular jurisdiction and as a result the Issuer becomes or is declared insolvent according to the law of any country having jurisdiction over it or any of its assets, the insolvency laws of that country may determine the validity of the claims of Securityholders and may prevent Securityholders from enforcing their rights or delay such enforcement. In particular, depending on the jurisdiction concerned and the nature of the assets and security, the Security created in favour of the Security Trustee may be set aside or ranked behind certain other creditors and the assets subject to such security may be transferred to another person free of such Security. Accordingly, investors could lose some or all of their investment.

In addition, certain jurisdictions have procedures designed to facilitate the survival of companies in financial difficulties. In such jurisdictions the rights of the Security Trustee to enforce the Security or of the Issuer (or the Liquidation Agent on its behalf) to enforce the security under the Swap Pledge Agreement or to enforce the Issuer's rights under the Swap Pledge Agreement and the Account Control Agreement may be limited or delayed by such procedures, which may consequently reduce the return received by the ETP Securityholders on their investment in the ETP Securities.

Regulation of the Issuer by any regulatory authority

The Issuer is not required to be licensed or authorised under any current securities, commodities or banking laws of its jurisdiction of incorporation and will operate without supervision by any authority in any jurisdiction. There is no assurance, however, that regulatory authorities in one or more jurisdictions would not take a contrary view regarding the applicability of any such laws to the Issuer. The taking of a contrary view by such regulatory authority could have an adverse impact on the Issuer or the holders of the ETP Securities. For instance, if it was determined by a regulatory authority that the Issuer was required to be authorised in a particular jurisdiction, it may not be possible for the Issuer as a special purpose vehicle to receive such authorisation. In such a scenario there is a risk that the Issuer could be required to effect a mandatory redemption of the ETP Securities which could result in a loss being incurred by holders of the ETP Securities.

Collective investment scheme

The ETP Securities are debt securities and do not take the form of a collective investment scheme or fund. This characterisation is notwithstanding any differing or alternative characterisation of the ETP Securities for any other purpose including, without limitation, the characterisation of the ETP Securities for US federal income tax purposes. There can be no assurance that the courts or regulatory authorities in any jurisdiction would not recharacterise the ETP Securities as units in a collective investment scheme or a fund. Any recharacterisation of the ETP Securities as units in a collective investment scheme or a fund may have adverse consequences (including, without limitation, adverse tax consequences) for an investor.

Regulatory Events

Investors should note that the Issuer has a general right to redeem the ETP Securities (see "Risks Relating to the Contractual Features of the ETP Securities" – "Issuer Call Option") and the Swap Counterparty has a general right following the second anniversary of the Series Issue Date to terminate the Swap Transaction relating to a Series of ETP Securities on giving not less than 180 calendar days' irrevocable notice to the Issuer (see "Risks Relating to the Contractual Features of the ETP Securities" – "Swap Counterparty termination option") which would result in an early redemption of the relevant ETP Securities. The impact (or likely or proposed impact) of regulatory reform may lead the Issuer or the Swap Counterparty to exercise such right.

One example of an area of regulatory change that might affect the issuer is EU Directive 2011/61/EU on Alternative Investment Fund Managers ("AIFMD"), which became effective on 22 July 2013. This provides, amongst other things, that all alternative investment funds (each, an "AIF") must have a designated alternative investment fund manager ("AIFM") with responsibility for portfolio and risk management. The application of the AIFMD to special purpose entities such as the Issuer is unclear and the interpretation may differ from jurisdiction to jurisdiction. The Issuer does not operate in the same manner as a typical alternative investment fund. The Issuer has been established solely for the purpose of issuing asset-backed securities. The object of the Issuer is the issuance of one or more financial instruments and entry into certain other agreements and transactions in connection with such activity. However, the definition of AIF and AIFM in the AIFMD is broad and there is only limited guidance as to how such definition should be applied in the context of a special purpose entity such as the Issuer.

Were the Issuer to be found to be an AIF or an AIFM, or were the Swap Counterparty, the Issuing and Paying Agent or any other service provider to the Issuer and/or the Trustee and/or the Security Trustee to be found to be acting as an AIFM with respect to the AIF, the AIFM would be subject to the AIFMD. Owing to the special purpose nature of the Issuer, it would be unlikely that either the AIF or the AIFM could comply fully with the requirements of the AIFMD.

In such circumstance, either the Issuer or the Swap Counterparty might (at its discretion) exercise its early redemption or termination rights, or the Issuer might take alternative action to limit the effect of the AIFMD upon it or any service provider to it. Examples may include, without limitation, delisting ETP Securities or no longer offering securities in particular jurisdictions.

No assurance can be given as to how ESMA or national regulators might interpret the AIFMD or whether any such interpretation might find the Issuer to be an AIF or an AIFM, or find any service provider in any capacity in respect of the ETP Securities and/or the Trustee and/or the Security Trustee to be acting as an AIFM with respect to the Issuer.

As a consequence of the factors listed above, the ETP Securityholders may lose all or some of their investment in the ETP Securities.

Not a bank deposit

The Issuer is not regulated by the Central Bank by virtue of the issue of the ETP Securities. Any investment in the ETP Securities does not have the status of a bank deposit in Ireland and is not within the scope of the deposit protection scheme operated by the Central Bank. Accordingly, the ETP Securityholders may lose all or some of their investment in the ETP Securities.

Preferred creditors under Irish law and floating charges

Under Irish law, upon an insolvency of an Irish company such as the Issuer, when applying the proceeds of assets subject to fixed security which may have been realised in the course of a liquidation or receivership, the claims of a limited category of preferential creditors will take priority over the claims of creditors holding the relevant fixed security. These preferred claims include the remuneration, costs and expenses properly incurred by any examiner of the company (which may include any borrowings made by an examiner to fund the company's requirements for the duration of his appointment) which have been approved by the Irish courts (see "Examinership" below).

The holder of a fixed security over the book debts of an Irish tax resident company (which would include the Issuer) may be required by the Irish Revenue Commissioners, by notice in writing from the Irish Revenue Commissioners, to pay to them sums equivalent to those which the holder received in payment of debts due to it by the company.

Where the holder of the security has given notice to the Irish Revenue Commissioners of the creation of the security within 21 days of its creation, the holder's liability is limited to the amount of certain outstanding Irish tax liabilities of the company (including liabilities in respect of value added tax) arising after the issuance of the Irish Revenue Commissioners' notice to the holder of fixed security.

The Irish Revenue Commissioners may also attach any debt due to an Irish tax resident company by another person in order to discharge any liabilities of the company in respect of outstanding tax whether the liabilities are due on its own account or as an agent or trustee. The scope of this right of the Irish Revenue Commissioners has not yet been considered by the Irish courts and it may override the rights of holders of security (whether fixed or floating) over the debt in question.

In relation to the disposal of assets of any Irish tax resident company which are subject to security, a person entitled to the benefit of the security may be liable for tax in relation to any capital gains made by the company on a disposal of those assets on exercise of the security.

The essence of a fixed charge is that the person creating the charge does not have liberty to deal with the assets which are the subject matter of the security in the sense of disposing of such assets or expending or appropriating the moneys or claims constituting such assets and accordingly, if and to the extent that such liberty is given to the Issuer any charge constituted by the Trust Deed may operate as a floating, rather than a fixed charge.

In particular, the Irish courts have held that in order to create a fixed charge on receivables it is necessary to oblige the chargor to pay the proceeds of collection of the receivables into a designated bank account and to prohibit the chargor from withdrawing or otherwise dealing with the monies standing to the credit of such account without the consent of the chargee.

Depending upon the level of control actually exercised by the chargor, there is therefore a possibility that any fixed security over the Issuer's assets would be regarded by the Irish courts as a floating charge.

Floating charges have certain weaknesses, including the following:

- (a) they have weak priority against purchasers (who are not on notice of any negative pledge contained in the floating charge) and the charges of the assets concerned and against lien holders, execution creditors and creditors with rights of set-off;
- (b) as discussed above, they rank after certain preferential creditors, such as claims of employees and certain taxes on winding-up, even if crystallised prior to the commencement of the winding-up;
- (c) they rank after certain insolvency remuneration expenses and liabilities;
- (d) the examiner of a company has certain rights to deal with the property covered by the floating charge; and
- (e) they rank after fixed charges.

As a consequence of the factors listed above, the ETP Securityholders may lose all or some of their investment in the ETP Securities.

Examinership

Examinership is a court procedure available under the Irish Companies Act 2014 (as amended) to facilitate the survival of Irish companies in financial difficulties.

The Issuer, the directors of the Issuer, a contingent, prospective or actual creditor of the Issuer, or shareholders of the Issuer holding, at the date of presentation of the petition, not less than one-tenth of the voting share capital of the Issuer are each entitled to petition the court for the appointment of an examiner. The examiner, once appointed, has the power to set aside contracts and arrangements entered into by the company after this appointment and, in certain circumstances, can avoid a negative pledge given by the company prior to this appointment. Furthermore, the examiner may sell assets, the subject of a fixed charge. However, if such power is exercised the examiner must account to the holders of the fixed charge for the amount realised and discharge the amount due to the holders of the fixed charge out of the proceeds of the sale.

During the period of protection, the examiner will formulate proposals for a compromise or scheme of arrangement to assist the survival of the company or the whole or any part of its undertaking as a going concern. A scheme of arrangement may be approved by the Irish High Court when at least one class of creditors has voted in favour of the proposals and the Irish High Court is satisfied that such proposals are fair and equitable in relation to any class of members or creditors who have not accepted the proposals and whose interests would be impaired by implementation of the scheme of arrangement.

In considering proposals by the examiner, it is likely that secured and unsecured creditors would form separate classes of creditors. In the case of the Issuer, if the Security Trustee represented the majority in number and value of claims within the secured creditor class (which would be likely given the restrictions agreed to by the Issuer in the Conditions), the Security Trustee would be in a position to reject any proposal not in favour of the Securityholders. The Security Trustee would also be entitled to argue at the Irish High Court hearing at which the proposed scheme of arrangement is considered that the proposals are unfair and inequitable in relation to the Securityholders, especially if such proposals included a writing down to the value of amounts due by the Issuer to the Securityholders.

The primary risks to the Securityholders if an examiner were appointed to the Issuer are as follows:

- (a) the potential for a compromise or scheme of arrangement being approved involving the writing down or rescheduling of the debt due by the Issuer to the Securityholders as secured by the Security Deed;
- (b) the potential for the examiner to seek to set aside any negative pledge in the ETP Securities prohibiting the creation of security or the incurring of borrowings by the Issuer to enable the examiner to borrow to fund the Issuer during the protection period; and
- (c) in the event that a scheme of arrangement is not approved and the Issuer subsequently goes into liquidation, the examiner's remuneration and expenses (including certain borrowings incurred by the examiner on behalf of the Issuer and approved by the Irish High Court) will take priority over the monies and liabilities which from time to time are or may become due, owing or payable by the Issuer to any Secured Creditor under the ETP Securities or any Transaction Document.

Therefore, if an examiner were appointed to the Issuer, this could impair the Issuer's ability to meet its obligations under the ETP Securities and as a result investors may receive less payment than expected or may receive no payment.

Irish taxation position of the Issuer

The Issuer has been advised that it should fall within the Irish regime for the taxation of qualifying companies as set out in Section 110 of the Taxes Consolidation Act 1997 ("Section 110"), and as such should be taxed only on the amount of its retained profit after deducting all amounts of interest and other revenue expenses due to be paid by the Issuer. If, for any reason, the Issuer is not or ceases to be entitled to the benefits of Section 110, then profits or losses could arise in the Issuer which could have tax effects not contemplated in the cashflows for the transaction and as such adversely affect the tax treatment of the Issuer and consequently the payments on the ETP Securities to holders of the ETP Securities.

Bank recovery and resolution regimes

The Bank Recovery and Resolution Directive (Directive 2014/59/EEC, as amended, "BRRD") includes measures that give resolution authorities power to restrict claims made against a party in resolution. The Swap Counterparty may be within scope of BRRD and, in the event the Swap Counterparty is insolvent or in financial difficulty, such resolution powers may be exercised against the Swap Counterparty. The exercise of such powers may impact the ability of the Issuer to recover payments from the Swap Counterparty under the Swap Agreement, which in turn may impact the ability of the Issuer to make payments under the ETP Securities, as the ability of the Issuer to make payment of an amount due to the ETP Securityholders is dependent on the creditworthiness of the Swap Counterparty and receipt by the Issuer in full from the Swap Counterparty of payments due under the Swap Agreement.

Following an exercise of any powers by a resolution authority, the Issuer may have insufficient assets or sums to meet its obligations under the ETP Securities, the ETP Securities may be the subject of an early redemption and any payment of redemption proceeds to ETP Securityholders may be delayed. For example, if the Swap Agreement is in-the-money for the Issuer at a time when a resolution regime applies to the Swap Counterparty, then any claims the Issuer has against the Swap Counterparty for the close-out amount thereof may be adversely affected by being postponed, converted into other assets or even written down to zero.

Furthermore, other resolution and recovery regimes, including those in specific EU member states, the United Kingdom, the United States and elsewhere, may also apply in the event that the Swap Counterparty is within scope of such resolution and recovery regimes due to its regulated status and the jurisdiction in which it operates.

As a consequence of any of the resolutions or actions referred to above, the ETP Securityholders may lose all or some of their investment in the ETP Securities.

4. Risks relating to the Swap Counterparty, the Swap Collateral Custodian and the Posted Collateral

Risks relating to the Swap Counterparty

In respect of each Series of ETP Securities, the ability of the Issuer to make payment of the Final Redemption Amount or Early Redemption Amount per ETP Security, as applicable, is dependent on its receipt in full from the Swap Counterparty of payments due under the Swap Transaction entered into in connection with such Series of ETP Securities (the one exception is where the Early Redemption Amount per ETP Security for such Series is equal to the Minimum Redemption Amount, in which case the Swap Counterparty will be obliged under such Swap Transaction to make payment to the Issuer of an amount which should equal the Value per ETP Security multiplied by the number of ETP Securities outstanding at such time (even where such amount is less than the amount payable in respect of all ETP Securities for such Series based on the Minimum Redemption Amount per ETP Security)). The Issuer's ability to make the payments due under the Conditions relating to a Series of ETP Securities on their early redemption is entirely dependent on its receipt of the relevant payment from the Swap Counterparty under the Swap Transaction entered into in connection with such Series of ETP Securities.

Accordingly, the Issuer and the Securityholders are exposed to the creditworthiness of the Swap Counterparty in respect of each ETP Security to the extent of the entirety of its Final Redemption Amount or Early Redemption Amount, as applicable. If the Swap Counterparty defaults on its payments under any Swap Transaction entered into in connection with a Series of ETP Securities (including any amount payable in connection with the early redemption of a Series of ETP Securities) or becomes insolvent, this would result in an event of default under the Swap Agreement, thereby leading to an early termination of every Swap Transaction entered into (and which remains outstanding) pursuant to such Swap Agreement (including, in the case of a payment default, those Swap Transactions entered into in respect of other Series of ETP Securities) and the early redemption of any outstanding Series of ETP Securities. In connection with any such early termination of all outstanding Swap Transactions under the Swap Agreement, if the Swap Counterparty has not paid in full the Aggregated Early Termination Amount to the Issuer when due, then the Issuer may (subject to the terms of the Swap Pledge Agreement) enforce the security under the Swap Pledge Agreement in respect of the Swap Collateral Accounts and the Posted Collateral (see "Risks relating to the Swap Pledge Agreement and the Posted Collateral" below). If an event of default under the Swap Agreement consequently results in a default in the payment of the Redemption Amount in respect of any Series of ETP Securities by the Issuer (subject to a 14-day grace period), it may also result in the Security under the ETP Securities becoming enforceable (see "Rights in respect of the Secured Property" above).

If, however, following the realisation in full of the Secured Property (whether by way of liquidation or enforcement) and application of available cash sums as provided in Condition 6 (Security), there remain any outstanding claims against the Issuer in respect of any Series of ETP Securities which are unpaid, then such outstanding claim will be extinguished and no debt will be owed by the Issuer in respect thereof (see "Limited recourse obligations, non-petition and related risks" above). Consequently, in certain circumstances, a Securityholder may not receive in full the Final Redemption Amount or Early Redemption Amount, as applicable, payable in respect of an ETP Security and may, in a worst-case scenario, receive zero.

Risks relating to the Swap Collateral Custodian

In connection with each Series of ETP Securities, the Issuer will enter into a Swap Transaction under the Swap Agreement. The ability of the Issuer to meet its payment obligations under a Series of ETP Securities depends on the receipt by it of payments payable by the Swap Counterparty under the Swap Transaction entered into in connection with such Series of ETP Securities. The obligations of the Swap Counterparty to the Issuer under the Swap Agreement (including all Swap Transactions thereunder) are secured pursuant to the Swap Pledge Agreement under which security interests are granted in favour of the Issuer over the Swap Collateral Accounts and all of the Swap Counterparty's rights under a custody agreement between the Swap Counterparty and the Swap Collateral Custodian (the "Swap Collateral Custody Agreement") to the extent they related to such Swap Collateral Accounts. The Issuer, the Swap Counterparty and the Swap Collateral Custodian have also entered into an Account Control Agreement, pursuant to which the Swap Counterparty (or the Swap Collateral Custodian on its behalf) will post Eligible Collateral to the Swap Collateral Accounts in order to collateralise the Swap Counterparty's obligations under the Swap Agreement. The Swap Collateral Custodian will hold any property so transferred to it on the terms of the Account Control Agreement.

The Issuer's ability to enforce the security created under the Swap Pledge Agreement and meet its obligations with respect to all Series of ETP Securities will be dependent upon the performance by the Swap Collateral Custodian of its obligations under the Account Control Agreement. Consequently, the Securityholders are also relying on the creditworthiness of the Swap Collateral Custodian (and/or any relevant sub-custodian appointed by the Swap Collateral Custodian). In the event of a bankruptcy or insolvency of the Swap Collateral Custodian, there can be no assurance that the Issuer will be able to obtain delivery of and/or realise the property held with the Swap Collateral Custodian or a sub-custodian on a timely basis. In addition, the Swap Collateral Custodian may hold some or all of the Posted Collateral through a clearing system and/or through a sub-custodian or other account keeper (a "Delegate"), and such Posted Collateral may be held in an account with securities of the same type as such Posted Collateral held by or on behalf of the Swap Collateral Custodian by such Delegate for the account of other customers of the Swap Collateral Custodian. In such case the Swap Collateral Custodian will use reasonable endeavours to ensure that any such Delegate will (to the extent permitted by law and/or what the Swap Collateral Custodian reasonably believes to be local banking practice) identify in its books the securities so held (including any Posted Collateral) as held for the account of the customers of the Swap Collateral Custodian and that such property is distinguished on such books from the securities of the same type held on behalf of persons other than the Swap Collateral Custodian's customers or for the own account of the Swap Collateral Custodian. If the Swap Collateral Custodian or any Delegate were to become insolvent and the securities held in any such combined customer account of the Swap Collateral Custodian with any such Delegate (and in which account some or all of the Posted Collateral were recorded) were insufficient to meet in full the claims of the customers for whom the Swap Collateral Custodian holds securities of the same type as such Posted Collateral, such customers (including the Issuer and therefore the Securityholders) would bear any shortfall amongst themselves.

None of the Swap Collateral Custodian or any Delegate will have any duty or obligation to insure any Posted Collateral held or received by it against any risk (including the risk of theft, loss, damage, destruction or misdelivery). None of the Swap Collateral Custodian or any Delegate will be liable to the Issuer or any Securityholder or any other person for any loss or destruction or depreciation in the value of any Posted Collateral held or received by it or any income therefrom unless such loss, destruction or depreciation is the direct result of the Swap Collateral Custodian's (or Delegate's to the extent it is affiliated to the Swap Collateral Custodian) negligence, fraud, bad faith or wilful misconduct. The Swap Collateral Custodian is not responsible for the acts, omissions, defaults or insolvency of any third party including, but not limited to, any sub-custodian, clearing system, securities depository, broker, counterparty or issuer of any Posted Collateral held or received by it. The Swap Collateral Custodian will only be responsible for losses suffered by the Issuer as a direct result of its negligence, fraud, bad faith or wilful default in the appointment and monitoring of any non-affiliated sub-custodian or nominee. Otherwise, the Swap Collateral Custodian is not liable for any act or omission, or for the solvency, of any non-affiliated sub-custodian or nominee.

Consequently, in certain circumstances, a Securityholder may not receive in full the Final Redemption Amount or Early Redemption Amount, as applicable, payable in respect of an ETP Security and may, in a worst-case scenario, receive zero.

Transfer of Swap Agreement and Swap Transaction and/or Swap Pledge Agreement

The Swap Counterparty may (subject to certain conditions) transfer the Swap Agreement and the Swap Transactions thereunder, the Account Control Agreement and/or the Swap Pledge Agreement to another of its offices or affiliates. In such circumstances the Issuer and therefore the Securityholders will be exposed to the creditworthiness of the transferee rather than the creditworthiness of the Swap Counterparty. Accordingly, investors may lose some or all of their investment should the transferee default in the performance of its obligations in respect of any Swap Transaction under the Swap Agreement and the Posted Collateral is not sufficient to cover amounts unpaid by the transferee.

Determination under the Swap Agreement

Pursuant to the terms of each Swap Transaction entered into under the Swap Agreement, the Swap Counterparty and the Swap Calculation Agent may make determinations which:

- (i) have an adverse effect on the Value per ETP Security of a Series of ETP Securities; and/or
- (ii) result in a Series of ETP Securities becoming due and payable prior to their Scheduled Maturity Date.

In making any determination under a Swap Transaction, the Swap Calculation Agent will make such determination in good faith and a commercially reasonable manner but owes no duty to any Securityholders, will act for its own account, may exercise any discretion in its own interests and will not and is not required to take into account the interests of the Issuer or any Securityholder, which may consequently mean the payments on the ETP Securities to holders of the ETP Securities are adversely affected.

Disruption Events

Under any Swap Transaction, a Disruption Event Notice may be given by the Swap Counterparty to the Issuer where (i) the Index Sponsor fails to calculate and announce the Closing Index Level of the Index, (ii) the Index Sponsor permanently cancels the Index, (iii) there has been a material suspension of or material limitation imposed by relevant exchanges or quotation systems or otherwise on trading in securities comprising 20 per cent. or more of the Index or futures or options contracts relating to the Index, (iv) any other event relating to the relevant trading facility occurs that materially disrupts or impacts the trading in or the ability of market participants in general to effect transactions in, or obtain market values for, securities comprising 20 per cent. of the Index or futures or options contracts relating to the Index, (v) the relevant trading facility in respect of securities comprising 20 per cent. of the Index is closed early and/or (vi) the relevant exchange or quotation system fails to open for trading on a scheduled trading day for such exchange or quotation system.

If, pursuant to the terms of any Swap Transaction entered into in connection with a Series of ETP Securities under the Swap Agreement, the Swap Counterparty gives a Disruption Event Notice in respect of a Scheduled Valuation Day, the Swap Calculation Agent may, but is not obliged to, determine and notify to the Issuer on the immediately following London and Paris Business Day a Closing Index Level in respect of such Series of ETP Securities and Scheduled Valuation Day in accordance with the provisions of the Swap Agreement in order to enable the Issuer to determine and publish the corresponding Value per ETP Security. If, however, the Swap Calculation Agent does not so determine and notify to the Issuer a Closing Index Level by the immediately following London and Paris Business Day, determination of the Closing Index Level for such Series of ETP Securities and Scheduled Valuation Day (and each subsequent Disrupted Day) will be postponed until such Disruption Event has been resolved or is no longer continuing, or, where such Disruption Event continues for nine consecutive Scheduled Valuation Days, until the London and Paris Business Day immediately following the end of such nine consecutive Scheduled Valuation Day period. Determination and publication of the Value per ETP Security for such Scheduled Valuation Day (and each such subsequent Disrupted Day) shall also be postponed accordingly.

If the Closing Index Level in respect of a Scheduled Valuation Day is not determined and published on the immediately following London and Paris Business Day, no further issuances or purchases by the Issuer of ETP Securities may be requested by an Authorised Participant on such London and Paris Business Day. If a further issuance or purchase by the Issuer of ETP Securities is traded on a particular day but a Disruption Event is subsequently deemed to have occurred in respect of such day and no Value per ETP Security for such day is determined and published on the immediately following London and Paris Business Day, the scheduled settlement date for such further issuance or purchase will be postponed until such Disruption Event has been resolved or is no longer continuing.

The delivery of a Disruption Event Notice by the Swap Counterparty and the determinations of the Swap Calculation Agent under the relevant Swap Transaction (including, without limitation, the calculation of the Closing Index Level) may have an adverse effect on the Value per ETP Security.

Investors should be aware that if the Swap Calculation Agent does determine and notify to the Issuer a Closing Index Level in respect of a Disrupted Day, such Closing Index Level may differ from the official closing index level (if any) determined and published by the relevant Index Sponsor in respect of such Disrupted Day. This in turn may also have an impact on an investor's ability to sell its ETP Securities on the secondary market due to factors including but not limited to, reduced liquidity of the ETP Securities or a wider bid/offer spread on the relevant exchange.

Adjustment Events

The Swap Counterparty may, on any Scheduled Valuation Day, determine that an Adjustment Event in respect of a Swap Transaction relating to a Series of ETP Securities has occurred or exists and deliver an Adjustment Event Notice in connection therewith. The Adjustment Events are (i) the Index Sponsor cancelling the Index and a Successor Index being identified and (ii) the Index Sponsor announcing that it will make a material change in the formula for, or the method of, calculating the Index or in any other way materially modifying the Index.

If an Adjustment Event Notice is delivered in respect of a Series of ETP Securities and the Swap Transaction entered into in connection with such Series of ETP Securities, the Swap Calculation Agent may determine in good faith and in a commercially reasonable manner that one or more adjustments to the terms of such Swap Transaction and/or the Conditions of such Series of ETP Securities is appropriate to account for the economic effect of the relevant Adjustment Event on such Swap Transaction and such Series of ETP Securities. If the Swap Calculation Agent makes such a determination, it will determine the adjustment(s) to be made to the terms of such Swap Transaction and/or the Conditions of such Series of ETP Securities in connection therewith and the effective date of such adjustment(s). There can be no assurance that any such adjustment(s) made to such Swap Transaction and/or the Conditions of such Series of ETP Securities to account for the economic effect of an Adjustment Event will not have an adverse effect on the Value per ETP Security of such Series of ETP Securities.

5. Risks relating to the Indices linked to the ETP Securities

Index-linked securities

The ETP Securities are index-linked securities. Whilst a "Value per ETP Security" is calculated and ascribed to the ETP Securities of each Series in respect of each Scheduled Valuation Day, the return on such Series of ETP Securities at redemption is funded solely through a Swap Transaction entered into with the Swap Counterparty exclusively in respect of such Series of ETP Securities. The amount that would be payable by the Swap Counterparty to the Issuer under the Swap Transaction upon a termination of the Swap Transaction as of any given day is linked to the performance of an Index and the Value per ETP Security of such Series of ETP Securities. Because the Issuer obtains its exposure to the Index through a Swap Transaction rather than by investing directly in the Index itself, these types of ETP Securities are known as indirect replication exchange traded indices. This is because the Issuer obtains its exposure indirectly via the Swap Transaction.

A Series of ETP Securities may trade quite differently from the performance of the Index to which such ETP Securities are linked and changes in the level of the Index may not result in a comparable change in the market price or in the Value per ETP Security of such ETP Securities. Accordingly, the return investors may receive on the ETP Securities through indirect exposure to the Index may not correlate with (and therefore be less than) any return payable had the investors obtained direct exposure to the Index itself.

Not an investment in the underlying asset(s)

The Index to which a Series of ETP Securities is linked will reference certain underlying asset(s). However, prospective investors should be aware that an investment in a Series of ETP Securities is not the same as a direct investment in the relevant asset or Index to which such Series of ETP Securities is linked. As a result, changes in the price of the asset will not necessarily result in correlated changes in the level of the Index, nor will it necessarily change to the same degree. In addition, the rules for calculation of the Index may include deductions for fees, a currency hedging component and/or other factors that affect how closely the Index tracks the price of the asset(s) referenced by the Index and may also permit the Index Sponsor to make certain adjustments to the level of the Index. Any such deductions and adjustments may cause the level of the Index to diverge from the price of the asset(s) referenced by the Index, which may consequently mean the payments on the ETP Securities to holders of the ETP Securities are adversely affected.

Long or Short Exposure

An Index may provide long exposure or short exposure. Prospective investors should be aware that if they invest in ETP Securities linked to a short exposure Index, price rises in the underlying asset(s) will generally result in a fall in value of the ETP Securities which may, in return, result in an investor losing some or all of their investment.

Leverage

If the Index provides a leveraged exposure to the underlying asset(s) referenced by the Index, the effect of any negative or positive changes in the price thereof on the level of such Index will be magnified as compared to the effect of any such negative or positive changes on the level of an otherwise identical Index that does not employ leverage. Prospective investors should note that such leverage will mean that any fall in the level of the Index will lead to a magnified fall in the Swap Value of the Swap Transaction referencing such Index. In such circumstances, the amount that would be payable by the Swap Counterparty to the Issuer upon the termination of such Swap Transaction will be less than had the Index been unleveraged, meaning that any losses on a Securityholder's investment in the ETP Securities would also be greater.

The negative performance of one or more components of an Index may outweigh a positive performance of one or more other components

Prospective investors should note that even in the case of the performance of one or more components which would, when taken alone, have a positive impact on the level of the Index, the level of the Index may still decrease if the performance of one or more of the other components of the Index taken as a whole have a negative impact on the level which outweighs the positive effect of such component(s). If the rules of the Index give greater weight to certain components of the Index than other components, the level of the Index and therefore the Value per ETP Security of the ETP Securities linked to such Index will generally be affected more by changes in the value or price of such weighted components.

In the event that the performance of one or more of the other components of the Index has a negative impact on the level which outweighs the positive effect of such component(s), investors should note that they may lose some or all of their investment.

Role of the Index Sponsor of the Index

The sponsor of an Index is responsible for the composition, calculation and maintenance of that Index. The Index Sponsor of the Index will have no involvement in the offer and sale of the ETP Securities linked to such Index (save that nothing will prevent any Index Sponsor from also acting as Authorised Participant with respect to any Series of ETP Securities linked to an Index sponsored by it) and will have no obligations or duties to the Issuer, the Trustee or any Securityholder with respect to any action taken by it as Index Sponsor. The Index Sponsor of the Index has no obligation to take into account and will not take into account the interests of any Securityholders or the impact on the Value per ETP Securities of any ETP Securities when making determinations and taking actions with respect to the Index.

The Index Sponsor of the Index may license the Index, and any of its sub-indices or strategies similar to the Index for use by other market participants, for publication in newspapers and periodicals, for distribution by information and data dissemination services and for various other purposes. Such licensing may contribute to an increased level of investment in the Index or similar strategies and this may have an impact on the level of the Index and the Value per ETP Security of the ETP Securities linked to such Index which may result in investors losing some or all of their investment.

End of third country transitional provisions for the Benchmark Regulation

Amounts payable on the ETP Securities are linked to the performance of various Indices. Certain of these Indices are provided by FTSE International Limited, a Benchmark Administrator based in the United Kingdom. As of the date of this Base Prospectus, FTSE International Limited is registered on the UK Register and provides its benchmark administrator services in the European Economic Area pursuant to the third country transitional provisions contained in the Benchmark Regulation. These transitional provisions currently allow FTSE International Limited to provide benchmark administrator services in the European Economic Area up until 31 December 2025 (the "BMR Transition Period").

As of the date of this Base Prospectus, it is currently unclear what steps FTSE International Limited will take following the conclusion of the BMR Transition Period; however, one potential outcome is that FTSE International Limited determines to cancel its provision of the Indices to investors in the European Economic Area. In this scenario, if suitable replacement Indices were determined to be unavailable, it would result in an Index Cancellation Event (as detailed in the Conditions to the ETP Securities) and the early redemption of relevant ETP Securities. As noted above, on early redemption, such Series of ETP Securities will become due and payable at the Early Redemption Amount per ETP Security. This may be less than an investor's investment, and potentially substantially less.

Change in composition or discontinuance of the Index

The Index Sponsor may add, delete or substitute the components of the Index or make other changes to the methodology for determining the asset(s) to be included in the Index or for valuing the Index.

The composition of the Index may therefore change over time to satisfy the eligibility criteria applicable to the Index or asset(s) currently included in the Index fail to satisfy such criteria. Such changes to the composition of the Index by the Index Sponsor may affect the level of the Index as a newly added asset may perform significantly worse or better than the asset it replaces. As the Value per ETP Security of the ETP Securities is linked to the level of the Index, changes in the composition of the Index may have an adverse effect on the Value per ETP Security of the ETP Securities and/or may constitute an Adjustment Event and/or result in a Disruption Event and/or the early redemption of the ETP Securities.

The rules of the Index may confer on the Index Sponsor in certain circumstances the right to make determinations, calculations, modifications and/or adjustments to the Index and the eligible components of the Index and related matters, which involve, in certain circumstances, a degree of discretion. An index sponsor will generally, as far as reasonably practicable, exercise any such discretion with the aim of preserving the overall methodology of the relevant Index. The exercise of such discretion may result in the level of the Index on any day being different to that which it may have been had the index sponsor not determined to exercise such discretion. Whilst an index sponsor is typically required to act reasonably and in good faith in exercising its discretion, there can be no assurance that the exercise of any such discretion by the Index Sponsor will not affect the level of the Index and/or alter the volatility of the Index and have an adverse effect on the Value per ETP Security of the relevant Series of ETP Securities.

If the Index Sponsor discontinues or suspends calculation or publication of the Index, under the terms of the ETP Securities, the Index may, in certain circumstances, be substituted with a Successor Index or an Index Cancellation Redemption Event may occur resulting in the early redemption of the ETP Securities. If the Index is replaced with a Successor Index, the relevant Securityholders will be exposed to fluctuations in the movements of the Successor Index and not the Index originally specified in the relevant Final Terms.

The Issuer is not affiliated to the sponsor of the Index in any way and has no ability to control or predict its actions, including any errors in or discontinuation of disclosure regarding its methods or policies relating to the calculation of the Index.

As a consequence of the factors listed above, the ETP Securityholders may lose all or some of their investment in the ETP Securities.

6. Risks relating to an investment in daily Leveraged ETP Securities

Magnified losses

ETP Securities which are leveraged seek to achieve a return which is a multiple of the daily return of the underlying asset(s) referenced by the applicable Index (excluding the effects of any applicable fees and/or any Adjustments) ("Leveraged ETP Securities"). Leveraged ETP Securities will magnify losses in market environments adverse to their objective compared to similar exchange traded products that are not leveraged. In addition, losses will be magnified as the amount of leverage increases. Investing in Leveraged ETP Securities is not the same as being long (or short) the underlying asset(s) of the relevant Index. Leveraged ETP Securities are designed to match the daily percentage change in the value of the underlying asset(s) referenced by the applicable Index, multiplied by a leverage factor included in the Index (excluding the effects of any applicable fees and/or any Adjustments). The return from holding Leveraged ETP Securities is not the same as the return from buying (in the case of ETP Securities referencing an Index which is long on the underlying asset(s)) or selling (shorting) (in the case of ETP Securities referencing an Index which is short on the underlying asset(s)) the relevant underlying asset(s) of which the Index is composed.

By way of example, Leveraged ETP Securities may reference Indices seeking to provide an exposure reflecting two times (2x) the daily percentage change in the value of the underlying asset(s) (excluding the effects of any applicable fees and/or any Adjustments). If the value of the underlying asset(s) rises by 1 per cent. on a particular day, then the value of the Index and, accordingly, the Value per ETP Security would rise by 2 per cent. in respect of that day (excluding the effects of any applicable fees and/or any Adjustments). The opposite effect would occur if the value of the underlying asset(s) falls by 1 per cent. on a particular day. In this case the value of the Index and, accordingly, the Value per ETP Security would fall by 2 per cent. in respect of that day (excluding the effects of any applicable fees and/or any Adjustments). Leveraged ETP Securities may also reference Indices seeking to provide, by way of example, an exposure reflecting minus two times (-2x) the daily percentage change in the value of the underlying asset(s) (excluding the effects of any applicable fees and/or any Adjustments). If the value of the underlying asset(s) falls by 1 per cent. on a particular day then the value of the Index and, accordingly, the Value per ETP

Security would rise by 2 per cent. in respect of that day (excluding the effects of any applicable fees and/or any Adjustments). The opposite effect would occur if the value of the underlying asset(s) rises by 1 per cent. on a particular day. In this case the value of the Index and, accordingly, the Value per ETP Security would fall by 2 per cent. in respect of that day (excluding the effects of any applicable fees and/or any Adjustments).

Investing in ETP Securities which reference a leveraged Index is riskier than investing in securities which provide exposure to an unleveraged Index as any losses an investor incurs will be magnified by the use of leverage and an investor could incur significant losses in a very short period of time. For example, in an extreme case, the value of the underlying asset(s) could decrease by more than 50 per cent. in a given day. If this happened, an Index that provides two times (2x) daily exposure to the return of such underlying asset(s) could (in the absence of an intra-day reset of the relevant Index – see “Large intra-day and overnight market movements” below) fall to zero as the Index would provide two times exposure to the 50 per cent. daily decrease in the value of the underlying asset(s) (i.e the Index would fall in value by 100 per cent. during the given day). Accordingly, the Value per ETP Security for a Series of ETP Securities tracking such Index could lose all of its value, meaning that the amount payable by the Swap Counterparty to the Issuer under the relevant Swap Transaction upon its termination would also be significantly reduced. Such a scenario could result in the total loss of an investor’s initial investment. The value of the underlying asset(s) could also increase by more than 50 per cent. in a given day. If this happened, an Index that provides minus two times (-2x) daily exposure to the return of such underlying asset(s) could (in the absence of an intra-day reset of the relevant Index – see “Large intra-day and overnight market movements” below) fall to zero as the Index would provide minus two times exposure to the 50 per cent. daily increase in the value of the underlying asset(s) (i.e. the Index would fall in value by 100 per cent. during the given day). Accordingly, the Value per ETP Security for a Series of ETP Securities tracking such Index could lose all of its value, meaning that the amount payable by the Swap Counterparty to the Issuer under the relevant Swap Transaction upon its termination would also be significantly reduced. Such a scenario could result in the total loss of an investor’s initial investment. Either of the above scenarios could occur in a very short period of time.

Daily leverage and long-term effect

Due to the Leveraged ETP Securities’ daily investment goals, a Leveraged ETP Security’s return over holding periods longer than one day will likely differ from the leveraged return of the relevant underlying asset(s) referenced by the applicable Index, and this difference will become more adverse as the holding period increases in length. Long and short leveraged Indices are designed to track the daily percentage movement in the value of the relevant underlying asset(s) multiplied by a particular leverage factor (for example two times (2x) or minus two times (-2x) as the case may be). The return from holding Leveraged ETP Securities is not the same as the return from buying multiples of the underlying asset(s) which comprise the relevant Index. Accordingly, an investment in long and short Leveraged ETP Securities may provide a lower return than if an investor had bought on a ‘leveraged’ basis or respectively ‘shorted’ or ‘short sold’ the underlying asset(s) which comprise the relevant Index. Similarly, the return from holding ETP Securities that reference short Indices is not the same as the return from selling multiples of the underlying asset(s) which comprise the relevant Index and buying back those underlying asset(s) at a later point in time (known in the market as ‘shorting’ or ‘short selling’).

The return on Leveraged ETP Securities over a period longer than one day is the result of the return for each day compounded over all days in that period. As a consequence of the daily leverage exposure of Leveraged ETP Securities, over periods longer than one day (excluding the effects of any applicable fees and/or any Adjustments), the redemption entitlement of a Leveraged ETP Security will fall if the change in the value of the relevant underlying asset(s) is flat (i.e. has a zero or close to zero return).

Price Volatility

Price volatility may result in long-term returns being significantly different to overall changes in the value of the underlying asset(s). For example, leveraged long Indices (and the corresponding ETP Securities which reference such Indices) may provide an exposure equal to two times (2x) the daily percentage change in the value of the underlying asset(s). However, over periods of longer than one day it is possible that an Index (and the corresponding ETP Securities which reference such Index) may provide a return which is significantly less than two times (2x) the percentage change in the value of the underlying asset(s) over such longer period. This will tend to be the case in circumstances where the volatility of the value of the underlying asset(s) increases or where the magnitude of the cumulative changes in the value of the underlying asset(s) decreases (whether on a positive or negative basis) over such longer time-period. Accordingly, leveraged long and short ETP Securities are only suitable for persons who understand the economic risk of investing in a security which provides daily leverage, the impact that price volatility may have on their investment and who are willing and able to monitor their investment on a frequent basis. Short leveraged Indices (and the corresponding ETP Securities which track such Indices) may provide an exposure equal to minus two times (-2x) the daily percentage change in the value of the underlying asset(s). However, over periods of longer than one day it is possible that an Index (and the corresponding ETP Securities which reference such Index) may provide a return which is significantly less than minus two times (-2x) the percentage change in the value of the underlying asset(s) over such longer period. This will tend to be the case in circumstances where the volatility of the value of the underlying asset(s) increases or where the magnitude of the cumulative changes in the value of the underlying asset(s) decreases (whether on a positive or negative basis) over such longer time-period. These examples do not take into account the additional impact that fees and/or any Adjustments will have on an investment in ETP Securities and the examples further assume that none of the days referred to is a Disrupted Day or a day in respect of which an Adjustment Event has occurred.

The Indices (and the Value per ETP Security of the corresponding ETP Securities which reference such Indices) will be affected by movements in the value of the underlying asset(s) comprised within the relevant Index. Such movements will be compounded given that the Indices may provide leveraged long or short daily exposure to the return of the underlying asset(s) comprised therein. The value of the underlying asset(s) may fluctuate widely and may be affected by numerous factors including, but not limited to, market and economic conditions, sector, geographical region and political events. Fluctuations in the value of the underlying asset(s) comprised in an Index will cause the value of the Indices (and the Value per ETP Security of the corresponding ETP Securities which reference such Indices) to fluctuate.

Investors should note that the effect of Indices providing leveraged long or short daily exposure to the return of an underlying asset or assets can result in significant losses over extended periods. For example, in respect of ETP Securities referencing 2 x Apple, the Value per ETP Security would have fallen by 51.2% between 20 July 2015 and 12 May 2016 (excluding the effects of any applicable fees and/or any Adjustments and assuming no Disruption Event and no Adjustment Events). In respect of ETP Securities referencing – 2 x Apple, the Value per ETP Security would have fallen by 76.5% between 12 May 2016 and 29 November 2017 (excluding the effects of any applicable fees and/or any Adjustments and assuming no Disruption Event and no Adjustment Events).

Large intra-day and overnight market movements

In the event of large movements in the value of any underlying asset(s) referenced by an Index during the course of a Scheduled Valuation Day, it is possible that an intra-day reset may be triggered with respect to such Index. An intra-day reset is designed as a stop-loss to restrict (to a certain extent) the loss in value of an Index during periods of extreme market movement by providing a new base level for determining the movement in the value of any underlying asset(s). The effect of an intra-day reset is that an Index will for the remainder of that day provide relevant leveraged long or short exposure to the movement in the value of such underlying asset(s) measured from the time the intra-day reset took place (or thereabouts). If an intra-day reset were to take place then, for the reasons described above, an Index (and the corresponding ETP Securities which reference such Index) will not provide leveraged exposure to the movement in the value of the underlying asset(s) throughout the course of that day. If the value of the underlying asset(s) were to fall (or rise) significantly during the course of a day resulting in an intra-day reset occurring with respect to the corresponding Index but then during the remainder of the day the underlying asset(s) were to recover their losses (or lose their gains) then the relevant Index and, therefore, the corresponding ETP Securities would still incur a significant loss during such day due to the intra-day reset providing a lower (higher) base level for determining the movement in the value of the underlying asset(s) throughout the remainder of the day. As a result, where an intra-day reset occurs, an investor's losses may still be significant. The level of any intra-day reset triggers will vary between different Indices. An intra-day reset may not occur with respect to overnight movements in the value of the underlying asset(s) (i.e. from close of a Stock Exchange on one day to open of the Stock Exchange the following day). Accordingly, in the event of a large overnight movement in the value of the underlying asset(s) referenced by an Index, the Value per ETP Security could plummet meaning that the amount payable by the Swap Counterparty to the Issuer under the relevant Swap Transaction upon its termination would also be significantly reduced. In such a scenario, an investor that holds a corresponding ETP Security could lose all or part of their investment.

7. Risks related to equity indices

No issuer of any relevant equities will have participated in the preparation of the Final Terms or in establishing the terms of the ETP Securities and no Authorised Participant will make any investigation or enquiry in connection with such offering with respect to the information concerning any such issuer of equities contained in the Final Terms or in the documents from which such information was extracted. Consequently, there can be no assurance that all events occurring prior to the relevant issue date (including events that would affect the accuracy or completeness of the publicly available documents described in this paragraph or in the Final Terms) that would affect the trading price of the relevant equities will have been publicly disclosed. Subsequent disclosure of any such events or the disclosure of or failure to disclose material future events concerning such an issuer of equities could affect the trading price of the equities and therefore the trading price of the ETP Securities.

The risks of an ETP Security funded exclusively by a Swap Transaction whose payout is linked to an equity Index may include, but are not limited to, the possibility of significant changes in the price(s) of the equity or equities referenced by the Index. The value of the relevant equities may go down as well as up and the value of any relevant equities on any date may not reflect its performance in any prior period. There can be no assurance as to the future value of any equity or of the continued existence of any equity or its related company. Accordingly, before making an investment decision with respect to ETP Securities, prospective investors should carefully consider whether an investment, the return on which will depend on a Swap Transaction whose payout is linked to the performance of equities, is suitable for them.

In considering whether to purchase the ETP Securities, each prospective investor should be aware that the calculation of amounts payable under the Swap Transaction funding such ETP Securities may involve reference to the performance of one or more equities over a period of time and to equities, the issuer(s) of which are incorporated outside the United States and the European Economic Area.

No voting rights or rights to directly receive dividends or distributions

Securityholders will not have voting rights or rights to directly receive dividends or distributions or any other rights with respect to the relevant equities to which such Index under an ETP Security relate. The return on the Index will be total return, meaning that it will assume that any dividends or other distributions which would be paid to purchasers would have been re-invested in the Index.

Diversification

The fewer the equities that comprise the Index, the less diversified the Index will be. Less diversified equity indices are generally more volatile than more diversified indices and consequently the Value per ETP Security of any Series of ETP Securities linked to an Index comprised of a limited number of equities or a single equity may also reflect a greater volatility.

Even if the Index is comprised of a basket of different equities, the effectiveness of the diversification may be limited due to price correlation between different equities. The greater the correlation between the price of equities comprised in the Index, the greater the impact on the performance of the Index and consequently on the Value per ETP Security of the relevant Series of ETP Securities of a fall or rise in the prices of such equities.

8. Risks relating to Conflicts of Interest

GraniteShares Jersey Limited

As at the date of this Base Prospectus, GraniteShares Jersey Limited is the Arranger. GraniteShares Jersey Limited and any Affiliate of GraniteShares Jersey Limited (“Granite entities” and each a “Granite entity”) may enter into business dealings, from which they may derive revenues and profits in addition to any fees derived in connection with the Programme, without any duty to account therefore. Accordingly, each Granite entity may choose to take steps that it deems appropriate in the normal course of its business without regard to the consequences for the purchasers of the ETP Securities or any other person. If such activities have an adverse effect on the level of the Index, adversely affect the price and liquidity of any component of the Index and/or the asset(s) comprised in the Posted Collateral, or ultimately adversely affect the Value per ETP Security of a Series of ETP Securities, the ETP Security holder has no recourse to the Granite entity for any losses.

Other Transaction Parties

Transaction Parties and/or their respective Affiliates may engage in trading and market-making activities and may hold long or short positions in the Index, any component of the Index, any asset comprised in the Posted Collateral and other financial instruments or products based on or related to the Index, components of the Index and/or assets comprised in any Posted Collateral for their own accounts or for other accounts under their management. Transaction Parties and their affiliates may also issue securities or enter into financial instruments in relation to the Index, any component of the Index and/or assets comprised in the Posted Collateral. Such activities could present certain conflicts of interest, could adversely affect the level of the Index or adversely affect the price and liquidity of any component of the Index and/or the asset(s) comprised in the Posted Collateral and may have an adverse effect on the Value per ETP Security of a Series of ETP Securities.

A Transaction Party and/or its Affiliates may be entitled to receive fees or other payments under or in connection with other products linked to the Index to which a Series of ETP Securities relates or otherwise and to exercise all rights, including rights of termination or resignation, which they may have, even though so doing may have a detrimental effect on investors in such Series of ETP Securities.

A Transaction Party and/or its Affiliates may, from time to time, by virtue of such activities and their status as underwriter, adviser or otherwise, possess or have access to information relating to the components of any relevant Index, the assets comprised in the Posted Collateral and/or the other Transaction Parties. There is no obligation on any Transaction Party to disclose to any investor in any Series of ETP Securities any such information.

A Transaction Party and/or its Affiliates may, as an issuer or counterparty of equity-linked obligations or transactions, engage in activities designed to reduce its exposure to the risk of adverse price movements that may impact on the level of a relevant Index and/or the prices of components of a relevant Index on any particular day, meaning it may be different from the level which it would otherwise have been, whether directly or indirectly. Such activities may have an adverse effect on the Value per ETP Security of one or more Series of ETP Securities.

In addition, a Transaction Party and/or its Affiliates may engage in activities designed to reduce its exposure to the risk of adverse price movements that may impact on the value of the Posted Collateral under the Account Control Agreement. Such activities may result in the value of the Posted Collateral being less than the amounts owed by the Swap Counterparty to the Issuer under the Swap Agreement (including all Swap Transactions thereunder) on a particular day.

COMMONLY ASKED QUESTIONS

This section is intended to answer some of the questions which investors may have when considering an investment in the ETP Securities. However, any decision to invest in ETP Securities should only be made after careful consideration of all relevant sections of this Base Prospectus and the relevant Final Terms. This section is not intended to be a substitute for, nor a summary of, the Conditions.

Capitalised terms shall have the meanings given to them in the Conditions.

1 What are the ETP Securities?

The ETP Securities are secured debt securities issued by GraniteShares Financial Plc, an Irish public limited company set up as the administrative vehicle for issuing the ETP Securities. The ETP Securities are designed to provide investors with exposure to a specified Index. They enable investors to gain such exposure without having to take physical delivery of an asset or having to trade in derivatives to such asset.

ETP Securities will typically be admitted to listing on the official list of the FCA and/or on another Stock Exchange, and will generally be made eligible to trade intra-day on the London Stock Exchange and/or on such other exchange.

2 How do the ETP Securities give me exposure to an asset?

The ETP Securities are long-dated securities that promise to pay an amount at maturity linked to the value of an Index. With respect to each Series of ETP Securities, the Issuer enters into a Swap Transaction under the Swap Agreement, pursuant to which it pays the entire issue proceeds of such Series of ETP Securities to the Swap Counterparty upon receipt. In return, at maturity or where such Series of ETP Securities redeems early, the Swap Counterparty will pay to the Issuer an amount that reflects the performance of the relevant Index and which will be an amount equal to the amount the Issuer has to pay on such Series ETP Securities. The one exception is where the Redemption Amount per ETP Security for such Series is equal to the Minimum Redemption Amount. In this case the Swap Counterparty will be obliged under such Swap Transaction to make payment to the Issuer of an amount which should equal the Value per ETP Security multiplied by the number of ETP Securities outstanding at such time (even where such amount is less than the amount payable in respect of all ETP Securities for such Series based on the Minimum Redemption Amount per ETP Security).

Because the Issuer obtains its exposure under the Swap Transaction, rather than by investing directly in Indices themselves, these types of ETP Securities are known as indirect replication exchange traded indices. This is because the Issuer obtains its exposure indirectly via the Swap Transaction.

3 Who is the Swap Counterparty?

Natixis is the Swap Counterparty.

4 What are the Indices?

The ETP Securities are index-linked securities. The amount payable in respect of the ETP Securities and the Value per ETP Security (see "What is the Value per ETP Security" below) is linked to the performance of the Index specified in the relevant Final Terms, as such Index may be replaced, substituted or otherwise adjusted in accordance with the Conditions.

The complete set of rules of any relevant Index and information on the performance of such Index are freely accessible on the Issuer's website at <https://graniteshares.com/europe/etps> (or such other website as may be notified to Securityholders) or on the index provider's website as specified in the relevant Final Terms and the governing rules (including methodology of the Index for the selection and the re-balancing of the components of the Index, description of market disruption events and adjustment rules) are based on predetermined and objective criteria.

The Index to which a Series of ETP Securities relates may be designed to provide leveraged long or short exposure to underlying asset(s).

The Indices are described in more detail under the section “Description of the Indices”.

5 Is an investment in an Index the same as investing in the underlying asset(s)?

An investment in an Index is not the same as investing directly in the underlying asset(s) comprising the underlying asset(s). Importantly, an investment in an Index does not give any ownership interest, right or entitlement to the underlying asset(s). Any amounts payable on the ETP Securities will be in cash, and the holders of the ETP Securities will have no right to receive delivery of any asset(s).

In addition, the return on most Indices will not track the return that would be achieved by an investor were it to instead invest in the underlying asset(s). See “What are the Indices?” above.

6 What is the structure of the ETP Securities?

Each Series of ETP Securities is issued on the related Series Issue Date by the Issuer to one or more Authorised Participants. In connection with such Series of ETP Securities, the Issuer enters into a Swap Transaction under the Swap Agreement, pursuant to which it pays the issue proceeds to the Swap Counterparty. In return, at maturity or where such Series of ETP Securities redeems early, the Swap Counterparty will pay to the Issuer an amount that reflects the performance of the relevant Index and which will equal the amount the Issuer has to pay on such Series of ETP Securities. The one exception is where the Redemption Amount for such Series of ETP Securities is equal to the Minimum Redemption Amount. In this case the Swap Counterparty will be obliged under such Swap Transaction to make payment to the Issuer of an amount which should equal the Value per ETP Security multiplied by the number of ETP Securities outstanding at such time (even where such amount is less than the amount payable in respect of all ETP Securities for such Series based on the Minimum Redemption Amount per ETP Security).

In order to minimise the risk that the Swap Counterparty does not make the payments due from it to the Issuer under the Swap Agreement (including all Swap Transactions thereunder), pursuant to the Account Control Agreement, on each business day (as defined therein being a day that is a business day in London and Paris and on which the Swap Collateral Custodian will calculate the value of the Posted Collateral and is open for business), the Swap Counterparty is required to ensure that at the end of such business day collateral assets having a total value at least equal to the Outstanding Amount are posted to one or more accounts established for such purposes (the “Swap Collateral Accounts”). The Swap Counterparty has granted security over the Swap Collateral Accounts to the Issuer pursuant to the Swap Pledge Agreement. The “Outstanding Amount” in respect of any London and Paris Business Day is an amount denominated in EUR, as notified by each of the Issuer and the Swap Counterparty to the Swap Collateral Custodian on a daily basis, equal to (i) the sum of all Unadjusted Swap Values determined in respect of the immediately preceding Scheduled Valuation Day and applicable to all Swap Transactions entered into and still outstanding pursuant to the Swap Agreement plus (ii) the aggregate value (being, for each further issuance, the relevant Issue Price per ETP Security multiplied by the number of ETP Securities being issued) of all further issuances settled on such London and Paris Business Day on or prior to 14:00 London time minus (iii) the aggregate value (being, for each purchase, the purchase price per ETP Security multiplied by the number of ETP Securities being purchased) of all purchases by the Issuer of ETP Securities settled on such London and Paris Business Day on or prior to 14:00 London time. The “Unadjusted Swap Value” in respect of a Swap Transaction (and the Series of ETP Securities in connection with which such Swap Transaction was entered into) is an amount equal to the Value per ETP Security for such Scheduled Valuation Day and Series of ETP Securities multiplied by the number of ETP Securities outstanding at such time of calculation (which, for the avoidance of doubt, shall not include any ETP Securities that have been proposed to be issued to an Authorised Participant, or purchased by the Issuer, but which issuance or purchase has not yet settled).

The amount of collateral that must be posted in the Swap Collateral Accounts will be adjusted daily to reflect the value of the Swap Agreement (including all Swap Transactions thereunder) based on the Outstanding Amount notified, and the value of the Posted Collateral determined, on the immediately preceding business day. If on any business day the Outstanding Amount exceeds the value of the Posted Collateral, then the Swap Counterparty will be required to post more Eligible Collateral to the Swap Collateral Accounts equal in value to such deficit. Conversely, if the value of the Posted Collateral exceeds the Outstanding Amount, then the Swap Collateral Custodian will be required to return to the Swap Counterparty an amount of Posted Collateral equal to the amount of such excess (ensuring that following such return, the value of the Posted Collateral will still at least equal, if not exceed, the Outstanding Amount).

Posted Collateral will be held by the Swap Collateral Custodian in respect of the Swap Counterparty's obligations under the Swap Agreement as a whole and not in respect of each Swap Transaction individually. Pursuant to the Swap Pledge Agreement, the Swap Counterparty has granted security in favour of the Issuer over the Swap Collateral Accounts and all of the Swap Counterparty's rights under the Swap Collateral Custody Agreement to the extent they relate to such Swap Collateral Accounts.

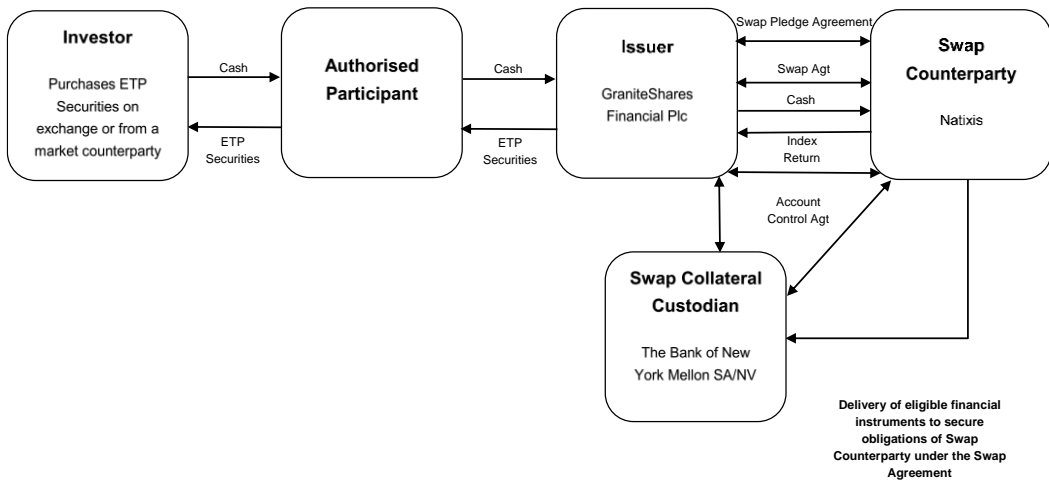

If a Swap Early Termination Date is designated (or deemed to be designated) in respect of a Swap Transaction entered into in connection with a Series of ETP Securities following the occurrence of an event where such Swap Transaction is the only Swap Transaction that is being terminated as a result of such event (including certain Early Redemption Events, a cancellation of the Index or an exercise by the Swap Counterparty of its right to terminate early such Swap Transaction), such Series of ETP Securities (and not any other Series of ETP Securities) will be redeemed early, an amount will be payable by the Swap Counterparty to the Issuer under the Swap Agreement in respect of each ETP Security for such Series equal to such ETP Security's Early Redemption Amount and each ETP Security of such Series will be redeemed early at such amount.

If a Swap Early Termination Date is designated (or deemed to be designated) in respect of all outstanding Swap Transactions under the Swap Agreement (which would occur if, for example, the Swap Counterparty defaults on its payment obligations in respect of any Swap transaction or the Swap Counterparty becomes insolvent), all outstanding Series of ETP Securities will be redeemed early. In such circumstances, an amount will be payable in EUR by the Swap Counterparty to the Issuer under the Swap Agreement equal to the Aggregated Early Termination Amount. Each ETP Security of every Series of ETP Securities will be redeemed early and the Early Redemption Amount per ETP Security of a Series of ETP Securities will be funded by a pro rata share of such EUR denominated Aggregated Early Termination Amount, provided that where a Series of ETP Securities is not denominated in EUR, then such pro rata share will be required to be converted into the Specified Currency for such Series of ETP Securities, with such converted amount funding the Early Redemption Amount per ETP Security for such Series of ETP Securities.

In connection with any such early termination of all outstanding Swap Transactions under the Swap Agreement, if the Swap Counterparty has not paid in full the Aggregated Early Termination Amount to the Issuer when due, then the Issuer may enforce the security constituted under the Swap Pledge Agreement and the Posted Collateral would be available to be sold in order to pay off amounts owing by the Swap Counterparty in respect of every Swap Transaction entered into in connection with a Series of ETP Securities under the Swap Agreement.

The Posted Collateral will be in the form of Eligible Collateral, and the Swap Counterparty may elect to substitute some or all of the Posted Collateral with other Eligible Collateral at any time prior to an enforcement of the security constituted by the Swap Pledge Agreement. The Posted Collateral will be held by the Swap Collateral Custodian, which is The Bank of New York Mellon SA/NV.

A structure diagram showing the principal aspects of the structure is set out below:

7 What is an Authorised Participant?

Authorised Participants are the only entities allowed to buy and sell ETP Securities directly from and to the Issuer. Any such purchase or sale is made at the prevailing Value per ETP Security plus or minus any swap upsize or unwind costs, as applicable. Authorised Participants act also as market makers by buying and selling ETP Securities from and to investors on an over-the-counter basis or via a stock exchange. In circumstances where there are no Authorised Participants (and accordingly no market makers), this constitutes an Early Redemption Event. In this circumstance, the affected series would be terminated and investors would receive the Early Redemption Amount.

8 Do holders of ETP Securities have recourse to particular assets of the Issuer?

The main assets of the Issuer in respect of a Series of ETP Securities are its rights and interests under the Swap Agreement, the Account Control Agreement and the Swap Pledge Agreement.

The obligations of the Issuer under all Series ETP Securities will be secured in favour of the Security Trustee pursuant to an English and Belgian law governed Security Deed by (i) English law security interests over the rights of the Issuer under certain agreements entered into by it, including the Swap Agreement (including all Swap Transactions thereunder) and (ii) Belgian law security interests over the rights of the Issuer under the Swap Pledge Agreement and the Account Control Agreement. The assets and property that is the subject of such security interests are collectively known as the Secured Property.

Other than following the occurrence of a Minimum Redemption Shortfall Event, the Transaction Parties and Securityholders in respect of each Series of ETP Securities will have recourse only to the Secured Property, subject always to the Security, and not to any other assets of the Issuer. If, following realisation in full of the Secured Property (whether by way of liquidation or enforcement) and application of available cash sums as provided in Condition 6 (Security), any outstanding claim against the Issuer in respect of any Series of ETP Securities remains unpaid, then such outstanding claim will be extinguished and no debt will be owed by the Issuer in respect thereof.

Following the occurrence of a Minimum Redemption Amount Shortfall Event, notwithstanding anything in the Transaction Documents to the contrary, the Transaction Parties and Securityholders in respect of the Series of ETP Securities under which such Minimum Redemption Amount Shortfall Event has occurred will have recourse only to a portion of the Secured Property relating to the Issuer's rights in respect of the Swap Termination Amount due and payable under the Swap Transaction entered into in connection with such Series of ETP Securities (including any amounts already received by the Issuer from the Swap Counterparty in respect of such Swap Termination Amount), subject always to the Security, and not to any other assets of the Issuer. If, following realisation in full of any portion of the Secured Property relating to the Issuer's rights in respect of such Swap Termination Amount (whether by way of liquidation or enforcement) and application of available cash sums as provided in this Condition 6 (Security), any outstanding claim against the Issuer in respect any Minimum Redemption Amount Shortfall relating to any ETP Security remains unpaid, then such outstanding claim shall be extinguished and no debt shall be owed by the Issuer in respect thereof.

A Minimum Redemption Amount Shortfall Event will occur if on the Early Redemption Valuation Date or Final Redemption Valuation Date, as applicable, of a Series of ETP Securities, the Minimum Redemption Amount per ETP Security is greater than the Value per ETP Security for such Series of ETP Securities on such day. In such circumstances, the Swap Counterparty would be obliged to pay an amount to the Issuer under the Swap Transaction entered into in connection with such Series of ETP Securities based on the Value per ETP Security and therefore such payment would be insufficient to fund a redemption of each ETP Security at its Minimum Redemption Amount. Any outstanding claim against the Issuer in respect of

(i) an amount per ETP Security equal to the Minimum Redemption Amount less (ii) such amount payable by the Swap Counterparty to the Issuer divided by the number of ETP Securities outstanding for such Series (a “Minimum Redemption Amount Shortfall”) would be extinguished and no debt will be owed by the Issuer in respect thereof.

9 What happens if the Swap Counterparty defaults?

The security under the Swap Pledge Agreement will become enforceable if (I) the Swap Agreement terminates in respect of all Swap Transactions thereunder and the Swap Counterparty does not pay in full the amount payable under the Swap Agreement when due or (II) the Swap Counterparty fails (or has failed to cause the Swap Collateral Custodian) to deliver Eligible Collateral to the Swap Collateral Accounts when required in accordance with the terms of the Account Control Agreement; and that failure continues for two London and Paris Business Days after notice of that failure is given by (or on behalf of) the Issuer, to the Swap Counterparty and the Swap Collateral Custodian in accordance with the terms of the Swap Pledge Agreement.

If the security under the Swap Pledge Agreement becomes enforceable, the Issuer will use reasonable endeavours to appoint a Liquidation Agent as soon as is reasonably practicable (and provided always that the Issuer will not be liable for any non-appointment of any Liquidation Agent or for any losses, damages, costs or expenses that result from any such non-appointment) to assist the Issuer in the enforcement of the security granted under the Swap Pledge Agreement. The Liquidation Agent will be appointed as agent of the Issuer to realise the Posted Collateral under such Swap Pledge Agreement in a timely fashion in accordance with the terms of such Swap Pledge Agreement, the Account Control Agreement and applicable laws, until such time as the Security constituted under the Security Deed has become enforceable and the Security Trustee notifies the Liquidation Agent that it is enforcing such Security and to cease its activities in relation thereto.

In appointing a Liquidation Agent, the Issuer will act in good faith and will seek to appoint a Liquidation Agent of good professional standing, having appropriate relevant experience and charging fees that are no higher than is commercially reasonable. The Issuer is under no obligation to obtain more than one quotation for such role and, where there is more than one candidate, may choose the entity it considers best suited to the role, regardless of whether other potential candidates would have charged lower fees.

10 When will a Value per ETP Security be calculated?

Subject to any market disruptions, the Issuer is required to calculate the Value per ETP Security in respect of each Scheduled Valuation Day, which value shall be published on the Issuer’s Website on the immediately following London and Paris Business Day. A Scheduled Valuation Day is any day on which the Index Sponsor is scheduled to publish the level of the Index.

If a Disruption Event is deemed to have occurred in respect of the relevant Index and a Scheduled Valuation Day, the determination and publication of the Value per ETP Security in respect of such Scheduled Valuation Day (and subsequent disrupted Scheduled Valuation Days) may be postponed until such Disruption Event has been resolved or is no longer continuing, or, where such Disruption Event continues for nine consecutive Scheduled Valuation Days, until the London and Paris Business Day immediately following the end of such nine consecutive Scheduled Valuation Day period.

11 What is the Value per ETP Security?

The Value per ETP Security is an amount in the currency of the relevant Series of ETP Securities calculated in respect of each Scheduled Valuation Day (subject to any market disruptions) representing the theoretical value of an ETP Security (although such ETP Security may nevertheless trade in the open market at a different value). The Value per ETP Security is used to calculate the Redemption Amount of the ETP Securities, whether at maturity or upon an early redemption and is predominantly determined by the official closing level of the Index referenced by a particular Series of ETP Securities.

The Value per ETP Security depends primarily on the performance of the Index to which the ETP Securities are linked. If the value of the Index rises, the Value per ETP Security should also rise. If the value of the Index falls, the Value per ETP Security should also fall. However, the Value per ETP Security is reduced by the deduction of fees and, if applicable, adjustments based on the occurrence of certain index, disruption or tax events (“Adjustments”). Depending on the performance of the Index, the deduction of any fees and/or any Adjustments may decrease any gains made from rises, or increase any losses incurred from falls, in the value of the Index.

The following worked example shows how the Value per ETP Security is calculated.

For example, assume that for a particular Series of ETP Securities, the Value per ETP Security starts at USD 100.0000 on 4 January 2024. If the value of the Index were to rise by 1% on 5 January 2024, the Value per ETP Security would rise by 1% minus the applicable fees and any Adjustments. If we assume that the fees are equal to 0.5000% per annum this would mean that the fees for that day are approximately 0.0014% (to 4 decimal places). We assume the Adjustments amount to USD 0.5000. The Value per ETP Security would (not taking into account any Adjustments) have risen by 0.9986% (equal to 1% less 0.0014% after taking into account fees) to 100.9986, but, due to the Adjustments of USD 0.5000, ultimately have risen to 100.4986 for such day.

Conversely, if the value of the underlying Index were to fall by 1% on 5 January 2024, the Value per ETP Security would fall by 1% and the fees applicable to that day of 0.0014% (to 4 decimal places) would also be deducted. Again, let’s assume that the Adjustments for such day amount to USD 0.5000. The Value per ETP Security would (not taking into account any Adjustments) only have fallen by 1.0014% (being 1% plus the fees of 0.0014% applicable to that day) to 98.9986, but, due to the Adjustments of USD 0.5000, ultimately falls to 98.4986 for such day.

12 How do I obtain a return from investing in ETP Securities?

The ETP Securities do not bear interest. No amounts are payable under the ETP Securities prior to their Scheduled Maturity Date unless they are subject to an early redemption. On the Scheduled Maturity Date, each ETP Security will become due and payable at an amount determined by reference to the Value per ETP Security. The return on a Series of ETP Securities is funded solely through a Swap Transaction entered into with the Swap Counterparty exclusively in respect of such series of ETP Securities.

However, ETP Securities are long-dated securities (typically around 50 years from their initial issue date). This means that if an investor wants to realise its investment prior to the Scheduled Maturity Date it will need to sell its ETP Securities to a purchaser prior to their Scheduled Maturity Date.

13 How do I buy and sell ETP Securities?

Investors can buy and sell ETP Securities in the same manner as they buy and sell other listed securities. Investors trading ETP Securities intraday are given a “bid price”, at which the investors can sell an ETP Security, and an “offer price” representing the pricing point at which investors can buy their ETP Securities in the market.

The bid and offer prices for ETP Securities at any time are likely to be different to the Value per ETP Security. This is because the bid and offer prices reflect market liquidity and other market conditions at a particular time, whereas the Value per ETP Security is calculated based on the closing price of the Index.

14 What fees do I pay?

There are potentially three fees that apply to a Series of ETP Securities. These are:

- an arranger fee;
- a swap spread fee; and

- an index license fee.

The rate per annum applicable for the swap spread fee and the index license fee may vary from time to time.

The arranger fee, as specified in the Final Terms, represents the fees payable to the Arranger and the other service providers in connection with such Series of ETP Securities.

The swap spread fee, as specified in the Final Terms, represents the fee payable by the Issuer to the Swap Counterparty in respect of the Swap Transaction entered into in connection with such Series of ETP Securities.

The index license fee, as specified in the Final Terms, represents the fees payable to the relevant Index Sponsor.

The fees are charged on each Scheduled Valuation Day and factored in to the calculation of the Value per ETP Security for such day.

15 Can my ETP Securities redeem before the Scheduled Maturity Date?

Yes. There are a number of instances where the ETP Securities might redeem prior to the Scheduled Maturity Date. These are:

- if the Issuer exercises its call option;
- if the Swap Counterparty exercises its right to terminate the Swap Transaction;
- if the Swap Transaction expires in accordance with its terms without being renewed; and
- upon the occurrence of an Event of Default or other Early Redemption Event (see “What Events of Default and Early Redemption Events apply to the ETP Securities?” below).

Where the ETP Securities redeem early the Early Redemption Amount per ETP Security will be calculated in the same manner as the calculation of the Final Redemption Amount described in “How do I obtain a return from investing in ETP Securities?”.

16 When can the Issuer exercise its call option?

In respect of any Series of ETP Securities, the Issuer has the option, exercisable upon 60 calendar days’ notice, to elect to redeem all the ETP Securities of a Series early.

17 When can the Swap Counterparty elect to terminate the Swap Transaction?

Under the Swap Agreement, the Swap Counterparty has the right, following the second anniversary of the Series Issue Date of a Series of ETP Securities and exercisable upon 180 calendar days’ irrevocable notice to the Issuer, to elect to terminate the Swap Transaction entered into in connection with such Series of ETP Securities. The Swap Counterparty shall not and is not required to consider the interests of Securityholders when exercising any such termination right.

18 When might the Swap Transaction expire prior to the Scheduled Maturity Date?

The Swap Transaction entered into in connection with a Series of ETP Securities may have a scheduled term that is less than the term of the ETP Securities. No later than 180 calendar days prior to the last day of the initial term or previously extended term of the Swap Transaction, as applicable, the Swap Counterparty will, pursuant to the terms of the Swap Agreement, elect either (i) to extend the term of the Swap Transaction for (A) an additional period, equal to the length of the initial term of the Swap Transaction (unless the period remaining to the Scheduled Maturity Date of the relevant ETP Securities is less than the length of the initial term of the Swap Transaction, in which case for a period equal to the period remaining to the Scheduled Maturity Date) or (B) such other period as may be agreed between the Issuer and the Swap Counterparty or (ii) for the Swap Transaction to terminate when scheduled.

The Swap Counterparty has no obligation to consider the interests of the Securityholders when deciding whether or not (or for how long) to extend the term of the Swap Transaction. If the Swap Counterparty does not elect to extend the term of the Swap Transaction, an Early Redemption Event will occur on the scheduled termination date of the Swap Transaction and each ETP Security of that Series of ETP Securities will become due and payable at its Early Redemption Amount on the relevant Early Redemption Date.

19 What Events of Default and Early Redemption Events apply to the ETP Securities?

The ETP Securities of a Series may become due and payable prior to their Scheduled Maturity Date as further described in Conditions 8 (Redemption, Purchase and Options) and 14 (Events of Default) in connection with the occurrence of any of the following events:

- certain legal or regulatory changes occur in relation to the Issuer;
- the cancellation of the Index without any successor Index;
- the termination of the Swap Agreement or the Swap Transaction entered into thereunder in connection with such Series of ETP Securities, whether as a result of a default by one of the parties, for tax reasons, as a result of illegality or a force majeure event or for other reasons;
- the Issuing and Paying Agent, the Swap Collateral Custodian and/or all the Authorised Participants, as applicable, resign or their appointment in relation to such Series of ETP Securities is terminated for any reason and the Issuer gives notice that no successor or replacement has been appointed within 60 (or, in the case of the Swap Collateral Custodian, 90) calendar days;
- the Value per ETP Security for such Series is not published for 14 consecutive days on which it is scheduled to be published;
- the Value per ETP Security is less than or equal to 200 per cent. of the Minimum Redemption Amount for such Series of ETP Securities for five consecutive Non-Disrupted Scheduled Valuation Days;
- a Securityholder does not, upon request, receive a firm bid price from an Authorised Participant for five consecutive Relevant Business Days and, following the requisite notices being given, such Securityholder does not receive a firm bid price for the relevant ETP Securities during a further 20 consecutive Relevant Business Days;
- the Security constituted by the Security Deed becomes enforceable; or
- an Event of Default occurs under the ETP Securities. These include certain breaches by the Issuer of its obligations that are not cured within the applicable cure period and certain insolvency events with respect to the Issuer.

Following the occurrence of an Early Redemption Event or an Event of Default under the Conditions of the relevant Series of ETP Securities, such Series of ETP Securities will become due and payable at the Early Redemption Amount per ETP Security.

20 What are Disruption Events and why do they matter?

Under any Swap Transaction, a Disruption Event Notice may be given by the Swap Counterparty to the Issuer where (i) the Index Sponsor fails to calculate and announce the Closing Index Level of the Index, (ii) the Index Sponsor permanently cancels the Index, (iii) there has been a material suspension of or material limitation imposed by relevant exchanges or quotation systems or otherwise on trading in securities comprising 20 per cent. or more of the Index or futures or options contracts relating to the Index, (iv) any other event relating to the relevant trading facility occurs that materially disrupts or impacts the trading in or the ability of market participants in general to effect transactions in, or obtain market values for, securities comprising 20 per cent. of the Index or futures or options contracts relating to the Index, (v) the relevant trading facility in respect of securities comprising 20 per cent. of the Index is closed early and/or (vi) the relevant exchange or quotation system fails to open for trading on a scheduled trading day for such exchange or quotation system.

If, pursuant to the terms of any Swap Transaction entered into in connection with a Series of ETP Securities under the Swap Agreement, the Swap Counterparty gives a Disruption Event Notice in respect of a Scheduled Valuation Day, the Swap Calculation Agent may, but is not obliged to, determine and notify to the Issuer on the immediately following London and Paris Business Day a Closing Index Level in respect of such Series of ETP Securities and Scheduled Valuation Day, in accordance with the provisions of the Swap Agreement in order to enable the Issuer to determine and publish the corresponding Value per ETP Security. If, however, the Swap Calculation Agent does not so determine and notify to the Issuer a Closing Index Level by the immediately following London and Paris Business Day, determination of the Closing Index Level for such Series of ETP Securities and Scheduled Valuation Day (and each subsequent Disrupted Day), will be postponed until such Disruption Event has been resolved or is no longer continuing, or, where such Disruption Event continues for nine consecutive Scheduled Valuation Days, until the London and Paris Business Day immediately following the end of such nine consecutive Scheduled Valuation Day period. Determination and publication of the Value per ETP Security for such Scheduled Valuation Day (and each such subsequent Disrupted Day) shall also be postponed accordingly.

If the Closing Index Level in respect of a Scheduled Valuation Day is not determined and published on the immediately following London and Paris Business Day, no further issuances or purchases by the Issuer of ETP Securities may be requested by an Authorised Participant on such London and Paris Business Day. If a further issuance or purchase by the Issuer of ETP Securities is traded on a particular day but a Disruption Event is subsequently deemed to have occurred in respect of such day and no Value per ETP Security for such day is determined and published on the immediately following London and Paris Business Day, the scheduled settlement date for such further issuance or purchase will be postponed until such Disruption Event has been resolved or is no longer continuing.

The delivery of a Disruption Event Notice by the Swap Counterparty and the determinations of the Swap Calculation Agent under the relevant Swap Transaction (including, without limitation, the calculation of the Closing Index Level) may have an adverse effect on the Value per ETP Security.

21 What is an Adjustment Event?

The Swap Counterparty may, on any Scheduled Valuation Day, determine that an Adjustment Event in respect of a Swap Transaction relating to a Series of ETP Securities has occurred or exists and deliver an Adjustment Event Notice in connection therewith. The Adjustment Events are (i) the Index Sponsor cancelling the Index and a Successor Index being identified and (ii) the Index Sponsor announcing that it will make a material change in the formula for, or the method of, calculating the Index or in any other way materially modifying the Index.

If an Adjustment Event Notice is delivered in respect of a Series of ETP Securities and the Swap Transaction entered into in connection with such Series of ETP Securities, the Swap Calculation Agent may determine in good faith and in a commercially reasonable manner that one or more adjustments to the terms of such Swap Transaction and/or the Conditions of such Series of ETP Securities is appropriate to account for the economic effect of the relevant Adjustment Event on such Swap Transaction and such Series of ETP Securities. If the Swap Calculation Agent makes such a determination, it will determine the adjustment(s) to be made to the terms of such Swap Transaction and/or the Conditions of such Series of ETP Securities in connection therewith and the effective date of such adjustment(s). There can be no assurance that any such adjustment(s) made to such Swap Transaction and/or the Conditions of such

Series of ETP Securities to account for the economic effect of an Adjustment Event will not have an adverse effect on the Value per ETP Security of such Series of ETP Securities.

22 How much of your investment is at risk?

All of your investment in respect of a Series of ETP Securities is at risk if the relevant Index performs poorly (subject to a Minimum Redemption Amount per ETP Security) as this will reduce the amount payable by the Swap Counterparty to the Issuer upon a termination of the Swap Transaction entered into in connection with such Series of ETP Securities. Whilst a "Value per ETP Security" is calculated and ascribed to the ETP Securities of each Series in respect of each Scheduled Valuation Day, the return on a Series of ETP Securities at redemption is funded solely through a Swap Transaction entered into with the Swap Counterparty exclusively in respect of such series of ETP Securities. Therefore the poorer the performance of the Index and the Value per ETP Security for a Series of ETP Securities, the greater the risk to your investment.

23 Who is the "holder" of ETP Securities?

If the ETP Securities are held through a clearing system (which will usually be the case if so specified in the Final Terms), the legal "holder" will be the entity nominated by the clearing system as the depository for the ETP Securities. As an investor, your rights in relation to the ETP Securities will be governed by the contract you have with your broker, custodian or other entity through which you hold your interest in the ETP Securities and the contracts they have with the clearing system and any intermediaries in between. Accordingly, where this Base Prospectus describes a right as being owed to, or exercisable by, a Securityholder then your ability to benefit from or exercise such right will be dependent on the terms of the contracts in such chain.

24 What rights do Securityholders have against the Issuer?

Securityholders' rights include the right to any payments or deliveries payable to holders of ETP Securities in accordance with the Conditions. Securityholders may also have the right to make certain determinations or decisions (which may sometimes be required to be by a resolution of Securityholders or which may simply require a direction in writing by a specified percentage of Securityholders) and the Issuer may only take certain actions with respect to the ETP Securities if approved by Securityholders. Securityholders should note that, notwithstanding they may be owed payments under the ETP Securities, their rights of direct action against the Issuer are limited as the right to take such action is generally vested in the Trustee (see "Who can enforce your rights against the Issuer if the Issuer has failed to make a payment on the ETP Securities?" below).

25 What are the requirements for exercising Securityholders' rights in respect of the ETP Securities?

The Conditions specify the requirements for exercising each right in respect of the ETP Securities, including the person (if any) that is entitled to enforce such right on behalf of the Securityholders and the required percentage of Securityholders (if any) that may direct such person to enforce such right.

For example, the Conditions specify that Securityholders may only exercise any rights in respect of the Security (including: (i) directing the Security Trustee to enforce the Security at any time after the Security has become enforceable; (ii) directing the Security Trustee to consent to any amendment to the Security Deed; and (iii) removing the Security Trustee) by passing a Securityholders' Resolution. A Securityholders' Resolution requires the consent of a majority of at least 75 per cent. in principal amount of the ETP Securities in respect of all Series of ETP Securities outstanding (excluding any ETP Securities in respect of which all claims of the Secured Creditors arising in respect of such ETP Securities and the Transaction Agreements in respect of such ETP Securities have been satisfied in full). Accordingly, where Securityholders hold less than 75 per cent. in principal amount of all ETP Securities outstanding under the Programme, they may be unable to exercise any rights in respect of the Security and/or may incur costs and delays in seeking to exercise such rights.

26 How do you exercise a right to vote or enforce your rights in respect of the ETP Securities?

If the ETP Securities are held through a clearing system then, as rights under the ETP Securities can only be exercised by the legal holders (see "Who is the "holder" of ETP Securities?" above), you must contact the custodian, broker or other entity through which you hold your interest in the ETP Securities if you wish for any vote to be cast or direction to be given on your behalf.

27 Who can enforce your rights against the Issuer if the Issuer has failed to make a payment on the ETP Securities?

The Issuer has executed a Trust Deed in respect of the ETP Securities, under which it has covenanted to the Trustee that it will make the relevant payments due on the ETP Securities. The Trustee holds the benefit of this covenant for Securityholders. If the Issuer fails to make a payment or delivery when due, only the Trustee may pursue the remedies available under the Trust Deed to enforce the rights of the Securityholders, unless the Trustee fails or neglects to do so within a reasonable time after having become bound to do so and such failure is continuing.

28 Who makes calculations in respect of the ETP Securities?

The Issuer will calculate (or procure the calculation of) the Value per ETP Security, Final Redemption Amount and Early Redemption Amount in respect of the ETP Securities.

29 Who makes calculations in respect of the Index?

The sponsor of an Index is responsible for the composition, calculation and maintenance of that Index. The Issuer, the Issuing and Paying Agent and the other Transaction Parties will use the official closing level of the relevant Index published by the relevant Index Sponsor (or where there has been a Disruption Event, such closing index level as determined by the Swap Calculation Agent) when making certain calculations and determinations subject to and in accordance with the Conditions and the relevant Transaction Documents relating to the relevant Series of ETP Securities.

30 Are there any fees, expenses or taxes to pay when purchasing, holding or selling ETP Securities? What other taxes might affect the ETP Securities?

You may incur fees and expenses in relation to the purchase, holding, transfer and sale of ETP Securities. You should also be aware that stamp duties or taxes may have to be paid in accordance with the laws and practices of the country where the ETP Securities are transferred.

You should note that, if the Issuer or any agent is required by applicable law to apply any withholding or deduction for, or on account of, any present or future taxes, duties or charges of whatsoever nature, it will account to the relevant authorities for the amount so required to be withheld or deducted and only pay the net amount after application of such withholding or deduction. None of the Issuer nor any agent will be obliged to make any additional payments to you in respect of such withholding or deduction.

You should consult your selling agent for details of fees, expenses, commissions or other costs and your own tax advisors in order to understand fully the tax implications specific to investment in any ETP Securities.

31 Can the Issuer amend the Conditions of ETP Securities once they have been issued without your consent?

The Issuer may amend the Conditions of a Series of ETP Securities without the consent of the Securityholders only if made pursuant to an Adjustment Event or if the Trustee determines that the relevant amendment is of a formal, minor or technical nature or is made to correct a manifest error or is not materially prejudicial to the interests of the Securityholders in accordance with the terms of the Trust Deed. Any such determination shall be binding on the Securityholders.

32 Are ETP Securities contracts for differences?

ETP Securities may constitute contracts for differences and investors should consider consulting their professional advisers on the implications of that for them.

33 How will the Authorised Participant determine its purchase or sale price of ETP Securities in the secondary market?

The price (if any) provided by an Authorised Participant for the purchase or sale of ETP Securities in the secondary market (whether in an on-exchange or off-exchange transaction) will be determined at the absolute discretion of that Authorised Participant by reference to such factors as it sees fit. The Authorised Participant(s) may maintain such bid/offer spread as it determines in its absolute discretion. The bid/offer spread is the difference between the bid price (i.e. the price at which a holder can sell ETP Securities to the Authorised Participant) and the offer price (i.e. the price at which a holder (or prospective holder) can buy ETP Securities from the Authorised Participant). Any price provided by an Authorised Participant or other secondary market price may take into account fees, charges, duties, taxes, commissions and/or other factors. Any price given by an Authorised Participant will be quoted as of a particular date and time and will not therefore reflect any subsequent changes in the market price of the ETP Securities and/or any other factors relevant to the determination of the price.

34 Can ETP Securities be invested in by a UCITS?

Prospective investors comprising a scheme which is an undertaking for collective investment in transferable securities (or UCITS) subject to the UCITS Directive need to satisfy themselves that an investment in the ETP Securities would comply with any regulations and/or guidelines applicable to them pursuant to the UCITS Directive and any laws, regulations or guidelines of their jurisdiction of incorporation and would be in line with their individual investment objectives.

35 When can Posted Collateral be substituted?

Any collateral to be posted to the Swap Collateral Accounts must meet certain eligibility criteria, as set out in the Account Control Agreement. A summary of the Account Control Agreement is found in the section below entitled "Further Information Concerning Certain Transaction Documents" which includes a summary of the eligibility criteria.

Pursuant to the terms of the Account Control Agreement, the Swap Counterparty may elect to substitute some or all of the Posted Collateral with other Eligible Collateral at any time prior to an enforcement of the security constituted by the Swap Pledge Agreement. The Posted Collateral may only comprise Eligible Collateral and any collateral posted to the Swap Collateral Accounts that does not meet the eligibility criteria shall not form part of the Swap Collateral Custodian's calculations in determining whether there is a margin excess or margin deficit on such day. See Condition 11(d) (Substitution of Posted Collateral) for a description of the circumstances in which Posted Collateral may be substituted.

36 Do holders of ETP Securities own the Posted Collateral?

Investing in the ETP Securities will not make an investor the owner of any Eligible Collateral comprising the Posted Collateral. Any amounts payable on the ETP Securities will be made in cash and the holders of the ETP Securities will have no right to receive delivery of any Eligible Collateral comprising the Posted Collateral at any time.

37 Do holders of ETP Securities have any ownership rights in respect of the Index?

Under the Swap Transaction entered into in connection with a Series the ETP Securities, the Issuer will have a contractual relationship with only the Swap Counterparty. Such Swap Transaction will not constitute a purchase or other acquisition of any interest in any asset(s) comprising the Index. The Issuer and the Security Trustee, therefore, will have rights solely against the Swap Counterparty in accordance with the Swap Agreement and will have no recourse to any asset(s) comprising the Index. No Securityholder nor the Issuer nor the Security Trustee will have any rights under the Swap Transaction to acquire any interest in any asset(s) comprising the Index.

38 Why do the leveraged Indices provide a daily exposure?

Leveraged Indices may be long or short the performance of the underlying asset(s) referenced by such Indices, for example minus two times (-2x) or two times (2x) the change in the value of the underlying asset(s). The value of the underlying asset(s) to which the minus two times (-2x) or two times (2x) exposure is applied will be reset on a daily basis. An investor who buys an ETP Security which tracks an Index on a particular day would receive minus two times (-2x) or two times (2x) exposure to the value of the underlying asset(s) on that day (excluding the effects of any applicable fees and/or any Adjustments). It is possible to construct indices which provide short or leveraged exposure to underlying indices measured over different time periods, for instance an index which provides exposure to minus two times (-2x) or two times (2x) the weekly or monthly change in the value of the underlying asset(s). However, in practice, these can provide the investor with an exposure level other than minus two times (-2x) or two times (2x). For example, if an investor purchased an ETP Security which tracked an index that provided two times (2x) leveraged exposure to the value of the underlying asset(s) on a weekly basis then unless the investor purchased such ETP Security on the day of the week on which the index was reset then they would likely receive an exposure level to the value of the underlying asset(s) other than two times (2x).

The advantage of investing in Indices that provide a daily exposure is that on any day the Value of the ETP Securities that track such Indices will (excluding the effects of any applicable fees and/or any Adjustments) change by minus two times (-2x) or two times (2x) the variation in value of the underlying asset(s) on that day. There are compounding risks associated with daily exposure (as described under “What are the risks associated with holding a short and/or leveraged ETP Security for periods greater than one day?” below) which would likely be reduced by investing in short and/or leveraged indices that are reset on a less frequent basis. Simulated examples are included in the “General Description of the Offering Programme” section of this Base Prospectus.

39 Can the level of an Index fall to zero?

It is possible that the value of the underlying asset(s) could rise or fall in value by more than 50 per cent. in a given day. If this happened then there is a risk that, in the case of a rise by more than 50 per cent., an Index that provides minus two times (-2x) daily exposure to the return of such underlying asset(s) could fall to zero and, in the case of a fall, that an Index that provides two times (2x) daily exposure to the return of such underlying asset(s) could likewise fall to zero. To protect against these risks, each Index provides for an intra-day trigger which is intended to act as a stop-loss to restrict (to a certain extent) the loss in value of an Index during periods of extreme market movement by providing a new base level for determining the movement in the value of the underlying asset(s). The effect of an intra-day reset is that an Index will for the remainder of that day provide minus two times (-2x) or two times (2x) exposure (as the case may be) to the movement in the value of such underlying asset(s) measured from the time the intra-day reset took place (or thereabouts).

40 What are the risks associated with holding a short and/or Leveraged ETP Security for periods greater than one day?

Leveraged Indices may be long or short the performance of underlying asset(s), for example minus two times (-2x) or two times (2x) the change in such underlying asset(s) (excluding the effects of any applicable fees and/or any Adjustments). Over periods of greater than one day, the Indices may not match precisely minus two times (-2x) or two times (2x) the change in the value of the underlying asset(s) over such longer period and it is possible that they “outperform” or “underperform” minus two times (-2x) or two times (2x), respectively, the change in the value of the underlying asset(s). This is because, as described above, the Indices reset on a daily basis meaning that the performance of an Index over a period of greater than one day will not be equal to minus two times (-2x) or two times (2x) the return of the underlying asset(s) over such longer period (excluding the effects of any applicable fees and/or any Adjustments). This compounding effect is described in more detail in the “General Description of the Offering Programme” section of this Base Prospectus and will generally cause “outperformance” of a short Index versus minus two times (-2x) the performance of the underlying asset(s) in a low volatility, smooth down-trending market and “outperformance” of a leveraged Index versus two times (2x) the performance of the underlying asset(s) in a low volatility, smooth up-trending market. The reverse is also true, with compounding potentially having a large negative impact on the performance of a short Index or a leveraged Index versus minus two times (-2x) or two times (2x) the daily percentage change in the value of the underlying asset(s) in high volatility markets. Simulated examples are included in the “General Description of the Offering Programme” section of this Base Prospectus.

ETP Securities which track such Indices are only suitable for persons who understand the economic risk of investing in a security which provides daily leverage and the impact that price volatility may have on their investment and who are willing to monitor their investment on a frequent basis.

DESCRIPTION OF THE INDICES

The ETP Securities are index linked securities. The return on a Series of ETP Securities is funded solely through a Swap Transaction entered into with the Swap Counterparty exclusively in respect of such Series of ETP Securities. The amount that would be payable by the Swap Counterparty to the Issuer under the Swap Transaction upon a termination of the Swap Transaction as of any given day, is linked to the performance of an Index. Because the Issuer obtains its exposure to the Index through a Swap Transaction rather than by investing directly in the Index itself, these types of ETP Securities are known as indirect replication exchange traded indices. This is because the Issuer obtains its exposure indirectly via the Swap Transaction.

Prospective investors should therefore note that the return on the ETP Securities is linked to the performance of the Index specified in the relevant Final Terms, as may be replaced, substituted or otherwise adjusted from time to time in accordance with the Conditions.

Indices

Purchasers of ETP Securities should conduct such independent investigation and analysis regarding the Indices, the relevant Index Sponsor and all other parties connected to the Indices from time to time as they deem appropriate to evaluate the merits and risks of an investment in the ETP Securities.

The complete set of rules of an Index and information on the performance of an Index are freely accessible on the Issuer's website at <https://graniteshares.com/europe/etps>. The governing rules (including methodology of an Index for the selection and the re-balancing of the components of an Index, description of market disruption events and adjustment rules) are based on predetermined and objective criteria.

Each Index replicates the performance of a hypothetical investment in underlying asset(s) taking into account interest and borrow rates and according to a specific level of leverage.

An Index may be long or short the performance of the relevant underlying asset(s) referenced by such Index. Such performance of the underlying asset(s) will also be leveraged by the Index Leverage Factor. The Index Leverage Factor will be any of +5, +3, +2, -1, -2, -3 or -5.

An Index providing a long exposure to the daily performance of the underlying asset(s) referenced by such Index (a "Long Index") will also have a positive Index Leverage Factor, providing leveraged long exposure to the daily performance of such underlying asset(s). A Long Index aims to provide a long exposure to the prices of underlying asset(s) referenced by it, meaning that a rise in the prices of such underlying asset(s) should be reflected by an increase in the level of the Long Index. The level of a Long Index will include adjustments to reflect certain inherent costs of maintaining such leveraged long position, including the cost of borrowing additional cash to invest in the relevant underlying asset(s). The cost of borrowing comprises the relevant overnight interest rate plus a funding term spread.

An Index providing a short exposure to the daily performance of the underlying asset(s) referenced by such Index (a "Short Index") will also have a negative Index Leverage Factor, providing leveraged short exposure to the daily performance of such underlying asset(s). A Short Index aims to provide a short exposure to the prices of underlying asset(s) referenced by it, meaning that a rise in the prices of such underlying asset(s) should be reflected by a decrease in the level of the Short Index. The level of a Short Index will include adjustments to reflect certain inherent costs of maintaining such leveraged short position, including the cost of stock borrowing to maintain a short exposure in the relevant underlying asset(s) and the revenue earned due to the overnight interest rate being received on any cash, collateral and short sale proceeds.

A short description of each Index (including the relevant underlying asset(s) and Index Leverage Factor) that may be referenced by a Series of ETP Securities is set out below.

All of the Indices disclosed below are net total return indices, with the level of each Index calculated on the basis that any ordinary gross dividends declared by the issuer of the underlying asset(s) minus any applicable withholding tax (as set out and referenced by the relevant rules of the Index) are reinvested in the relevant Index.
